Little Support For Censorship At Panel Talk

Residents of Victoria don't want censorship in any form judging by the audience reaction to a panel discussion on the subject in the Douglas CCF Hall last night.

The panel consisted of four local men, from various walks of life, who thoroughly threshed out the question: "Is modern society justified in establishing censorship?" The lively debate warmed up considerably when the audience began peppering the four speakers with questions.

Speakers were R. J. Bishop, of Victoria College; Hugh Botterell, Victoria lawyer; Frank Richards, editor of the Saanich Star ,and Don Anderson, vice-president of the provincial Junior Chamber of Commerce.

DISTORTION CHARGED

Messrs. Bishop, Botterell, and Richards opposed censorship. Mr. Anderson said he was against the principle but that it was "necessary."

"I feel that liberty must be limited in order to be possessed," said Mr. Anderson. He went on to blame the press for much of the trouble.

"As long as they distort and print inaccurate news there must be a censorship which I term voluntary restriction at source," he said. "As an example of distortion and inaccuracy I point to this book-burning business."

If the press imposed regulations itself, he went on, and exercised its own censorship the people would have a better opinion of it.

SHOULD MIND BE FREE

Not so, retorted Mr. Bishop. The problem was bound up in the general question as to whether the human mind should be left free to find its own solution or truth on any subject.

"The Nazis and Communists know how to impose total censorship but only for a short time. They train and get control of children's minds. But you dont have men. You have robots," said Mr. Bishop.

He referred to those who

March 5 Target For Budget

British Columbians may know the details of the provincial government's tax plans, the exact amount of pension bonuses and the future of hospital insurance on Friday, March 5.

Premier Bennett said Wednesday he hopes to present his 1954-55 budget to the legislature then.

Unless the current throne speech debate speeds up, however, the budget may have to be postponed a few days.

The premier said he would prefer to bring down the budget on a Friday so that opposition members would have the week end to study the government's financial proposals before CCF leader Arnold Webster opens debate on them.

Legislation will probably begin to trickle into the house this week. No major bills are expected until after the budget has been presented, however.

Sommers Accepts Sooke Park Deal

Sooke Mountain Park will be kept from the public for at least another five years.

An exchange of land that includes two attractive lakes in the park was approved by Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers yesterday.

The deal consists of swapping 3,000,000 board feet of Crown timber on the easterly portion of the park for 409 acres of timbered land, lakes and other assets owned by G. E. Fernard, Cooper's Cove.

Mr. Bernard said last night the parks and recreation board of the provincial government had agreed to let him use the road into the new park for another five years to complete a contract let for logging rights.

The 5½-mile paved road is the only paved logging road in B.C. and was built by Mr. Bernard.

"They agreed to let me use the road as before for five years more, and after that, the park will still not be opened until it has been improved," Bernard said.

He said park and recreation officials feel five years is not too long a time, because it will take at least that length of time to make preparations and get the money needed to improve the park.

"But I will still have complete control of the road as before. I put it in at my own expense, and all Mr. Sommers has really done is give his blessings to the parks and recreation board," Mr. Bernard said.

He added that if anyone is really interested in going in over his road, they can, and must obtain permission from him first.

Resources Delegates Talk It Over

D. F. Kidd, conference president, Vancouver, extreme left, talks with other delegates. They are, left to right, G. S. Andrews, secretary-general, B.C. surveyor-general, Victoria; J. R. Brett, Pacific biological station, Nanaimo; Dr. P. B. Turner, conference secretary and past-president, resources branch, Victoria, and G. S. Allen, forestry faculty dean, UBC.

At B.C. Resources Conference

Forest Fire Detection Hit

B.C.'s forest fire detection services are "grossly inadequate," according to H. A. Richmond of the Victoria laboratory of the forest biology division.

He made the statement here yesterday addressing a session of the B.C. natural resources conference. (See also stories, Page 2.)

"Some 80 lookout sites are awaiting money for their development, and at least 150 more lookouts are necessary to give even a sketchy coverage of the province," said Mr. Richmond.

"Six chartered aircraft for fire detections are grossly inadequate, and B.C. has no helicopters or smoke jumpers. Many miles of access roads and trails are badly needed.

"In the past two years 7 per cent of fires have been responsible for 87 per cent of the total fire-fighting bill because it took days rather than hours to reach them," he added.

Mr. Richmond pointed out that no single phase of research activities in the forest offers a wider field for objects and methods than survey.

He said a survey in 1910 might have prevented the spread of white pine blister rust, which had become so widespread and firmly established when it was detected in 1921, "that it is doubtful whether any commercial stands of white pine will remain in the next generation."

Research into mechanical means of logging had added greatly to the prosperity of the industry, said C. B. Dunham, woods manager, Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Co., Ltd.

"The forest industry in B.C. has expanded on low cost wood. Continuing support for research in better logging methods and equipment will help maintain this expansion," Mr. Dunham said.

Store Petitions Busy

People wanting to sign a petition asking for a plebiscite before any liquor licenses are issued in Victoria are keeping canvassers busy in 11 city stores this week. Petitions have been placed in the stores for the convenience of those who work in town. Two of the many who signed in a downtown drugstore yesterday were Leigh MacClintick, 1349 Trent, and Louella Goulet, 1251 Pandora. Petition witness is Mrs. M. Waistall, 3167 Carrol.

A sea serpent slipped from photographic fame by about 50 yards yesterday.

Six men played a big game of chance in a rowboat by attempting to photograph the serpent as it frisked about 300 yards offshore just north of Parksville.

W. Baldwin of Errington stood on shore and watched the scene through field glasses.

"I never saw anything like it," Mr. Baldwin declared in describing the monster as something with a "reptile head and a tail that seemed to taper to about the size of a man's hand." It was about 30 feet long, he said, and had four humps.

He and a crowd of about 30 persons witnessed the sight for about an hour before the six men launched a row boat, taking a camera with them, in an attempt to prove that the monster, perhaps Victoria's famed Caddy, was not fictitious.

Arthur Stewart and his brother, both of Horne Lake, Chuck Ball of Dashwood, and three others were in the boat. Two rowed and the others kept their eyes on the monster, Mr. Baldwin said.

The monster submerged and surfaced about 100 yards on the shore side of the adventurers.

"Then it made a beeline for them but submerged for good in about 50 yards," noted Mr. Baldwin.

Some people thought it was a "big octopus," he said. "But they can't swim that fast—can they?" he asked.

Naguib Out In Struggle Over Powers

MOHAMMED NAGUIB

Vice-Premier Taking Place; Long Believed Real Leader

CAIRO (CP)—Egypt's first president, Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib, has resigned in the apparent upshot of a struggle for power with his vice-premier, "strong man" Gamal Abdel Nasser.

An official announcement just before dawn today said Nasser is taking over as premier of Egypt and president of the Revolutionary Council, but it said nothing about the presidency of the republic.

Naguib, 53, has held all three posts since the monarchy was ended officially last June 18 and was replaced with the proclaimed republic headed by Naguib.

Nasser, a 36-year-old lieutenant-colonel, has long been regarded as the real power behind the revolutionary army group that deposed and exiled King Farouk in June, 1952.

WANTED POWERS

Major Salah Salem, national guidance minister, said Naguib sought the power to veto decisions of the ruling Revolutionary Council. He also wanted the right to appoint and dismiss cabinet ministers and the right to appoint, dismiss or transfer members of the armed forces.

The announcement said Naguib's resignation was submitted three days ago.

There had been frequent reports that Nasser was becoming the real power in the military government — more important than Naguib, who has been referred to as "the reluctant dictator."

Nasser and Naguib are Egyptian heroes of the Palestine war, in which both were wounded. Nasser became secretary-general of the liberation rally which took over the government after the 1952 coup.

RUNNING NATION

For months Nasser had been doing the high administration work while Naguib has been away visiting the country, making speeches and building goodwill for the Revolutionary party.

In the negotiations with Britain over evacuation of British troops from the Suez Canal Zone, Nasser has played the leading role.

Long before the actual overthrow of King Farouk, Nasser had become a power behind the scenes.

Nasser was a member of the "Free Officers," the secret society of young army officers opposed to the established order. It was largely owing to him that Naguib was chosen and supported by the junior officers as the symbol of the army's revolt.

In May, 1953, Nasser became vice-president of the Revolutionary Council. He was also made minister of the interior.

A strapping six-footer with thick black hair flecked with grey, Nasser speaks fluent English and during the Second World War was attached to British forces in the western desert.

But this has not prevented him from using the slogan "Out with the British—Egypt for the Egyptians" and making violently anti-British speeches.

It was he who largely influenced the decision that ex-king Farouk's life should be spared when a number of army leaders wanted him shot or imprisoned.

City Water Pinch Believed Finished

Greater Victoria should escape its annual water famine this summer.

Municipal officials feel that new water mains and connections recently completed, or to be finished before summer heat waves, have eliminated all but a few problems.

The trouble areas that remain are in Saanich municipality. But Reeve Joseph Casey yesterday said he is satisfied that more than 90 per cent of the municipality will have good water service by the end of June.

The other 10 per cent might still be served by elderly two-inch water mains that cannot give sufficient pressure. The small lines are being replaced by larger ones as part of a replacement policy that allots $25,000 each year for the work. This policy is continuing.

Esquimalt, which is supplied by the city water works system, also expects to be free of drought troubles. No restrictions were necessary last summer, an official said.

NEW CONNECTION

Oak Bay's engineer, A. S. G. Musgrave, said he would be "disappointed" if there are restrictions this summer, saying that the connection earlier this week to a new 20-inch main should help adequately supply all areas.

Brentwood water district is contemplating an expansion of its storage facilities in preparation for possible expansion of its lines to an area now served by the B.C. Eelctric power plant.

Tenders closed Saturday for construction of a 100,000-gallon storage tank to be erected in the extension to the new customers.

St. Laurent Defends Pakistan Aid At Hard-Hitting Indian Press Talk

NEW DELHI (CP)—At a hard-hitting press conference with Indian correspondents, Prime Minister St. Laurent Wednesday rejected suggestions that United States military aid to Pakistan is a mistake, said Canada would be "very much concerned" at any arms deal between India and Russia, and endorsed Prime Minister Nehru's appeal for a cease-fire in Indo-China.

The prime minister held a spirited question-and-answer session with more than 100 correspondents. One of the reporters remarked afterward that while the atmosphere remained good-humored, it was one of the "toughest" press conferences he had even seen here. Another said that in six years it was the first time a press conference had ended with applause.

Some of the newspaper men were armed with copies of the text of the Canadian leader's speech to the Indian parliament Tuesday in which he described the United States as the "most unselfish country" ever to play the role of a major power.

The prime minister, in reply to questions, Wednesday defended U.S. motives in extending military aid.

He denied that United States policies had been adopted with the "deliberate intention" of creating tension between India and Pakistan.

Jet Bomber Lost at Sea

HONOLULU (UP)—U.S. and British search planes Wednesday combed some 45,000 square miles of the southwest Pacific for a Royal Australian Air Force Canberra jet bomber missing since Monday.

The plane, which normally carries three crewmen, was last seen in the vicinity of Kusaie Island, about 450 miles south of Eniwetok.

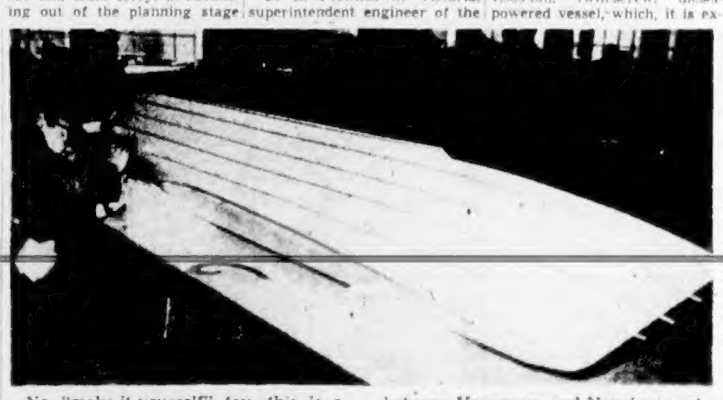
In one of the most thrilling exploits of his storied career, Holmes cracks the weird "dancing men" messages that haunt the year-old honeymoon of a sturdy English squire and his American bride.

City Man in Glasgow To Check Specifications

Nanaimo Ferry Past Planning Stage

GLASGOW—Hull 646, the Canadian Pacific Railway's new Vancouver-Nanaimo passenger, car and train ferry, is advancing out of the planning stage at the shipbuilding yard of Alexander Stephen and Sons, at nearby Linthouse.

D. B. Prentice of Victoria, superintendent engineer of the B.C. coast steamships in charge of construction, is here to point out specifications for the new 7,000-ton, twin-screw, diesel-powered vessel, which, it is expected, will go into service about the middle of 1955.



No "make-it-yourself" toy, this is a shell model of hull "646," the Canadian Pacific Railway's new automobile and train ferry which is to go into service between Vancouver and Nanaimo next year. The 7,000-ton, twin-screw, diesel-powered vessel is now under construction at Linthouse, Scotland.

Except for a shell model of the new ship, and a scale wax model of the hull now undergoing tank tests at the National Physical Laboratory at Teddington, the new ship is known only as "No. 646." The keel is being built in sections and will be assembled on a keelway when a berth in the shipyard becomes available.

The new unit will conform to the highest standards of Lloyd's and when completed, will have a service speed of 15½ knots. She will be the first all-purpose vessel ever built by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Besides accommodation for 800 passengers, she will be able to carry 28 railway cars or alternatively 110 to 120 automobiles, or a combination of any form of wheeled traffic, including the largest road trucks and buses. The vessel's operating schedule is expected to call for three round trips daily between Vancouver and Nanaimo.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

"SPOT-THE-LICENSE-PLATE" used to be an intriguing game," for the people who knew the rules.

A man could give the impression of great worldly wisdom by glancing at parked cars and saying: "That convertible comes from Vancouver. That big sedan is from Nanaimo. The coupe on the corner—that's a Victoria car. I can tell from the license number."

Numbers were allotted according to districts. But in 1952 the game grew more difficult. The government issued new alumium plates designed to last five years. The plates bore a totem and a maple leaf, allowing space for only five digits. The highest possible number was 99,999.

Since B.C. then had some 300,000 motor vehicles, letters were added fore and aft of license numbers, and in between. It was still possible to tell where some cars came from by looking at their plates, but you had to think a little harder.

* * *

During the next two years a lot of cars changed hands and moved to other towns. The motor vehicle bureau, running short of numbers in one series, and finding a surplus in another series, began to shift the numbers around.

Pin-pointing a car by its license number is now largely guesswork. But there is hope ahead.

The "five-year" aluminum plates were a flop. They buckled too easily, for one thing. A number of owners—especially of commercial vehicles—had to buy new plates at $2 a shot, which didn't please them. The filing system was hard to operate.

So those pesky plates are to be abandoned. The five-year plan goes overboard after only three years. Commercial vehicles have new steel plates now. Private-car owners are picking up validation tabs for the last time. They will keep the old plates one more season.

* * *

But in the year 1955 the owners of all B.C.'s motor vehicles (350,000 this year, an estimated 400,000 next year) will get new steel plates. The plates will probably go into production at Oakalla in April.

The maple leaf-totem symbol comes off the plates, leaving room for straight numerals up to 999,999. No more letters. It will be easier to allot numbers to districts. The license-spotters will be in their glory again. They can already tell where commercial vehicles come from, if they have studied the numbers.

* * *

The staff of the motor vehicle bureau will have a smoother time next year except for one thing. They will be plagued again by people asking for special numbers. Some motorists want numbers the same as their telephone numbers, or their addresses. Others want to avoid 13, or get numbers that add up to the same total as the letters in their names.

It was once possible to reserve numbers under 3,000, if you ordered them by mail before January 31. First chance went to the man who had held that particular number the previous year. If he didn't claim the number, it was handed to another motorist on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The bureau hasn't yet decided whether it will allow people to reserve numbers in 1955.

Whatever happens, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Col. Clarence Wallace, won't need a license. The Crown can't be charged a license fee. The lieutenant-governor's limousine has a plate bearing the provincial coat-of-arms.

* * *

When Byron Johnson was premier, he managed to secure license number J 1 from the Vancouver office. It is still in his family.

License number 2 used to belong to the late Capt. J. W. Troup, head of the B.C. Coast Steamship Service. His son, Roy Troup, who now lives in Vancouver, "inherited" it. He has sold his car with license plate number 2, but will probably apply for it again next year, if people are allowed to reserve it.

The late General Noel Money, owner of the Qualicum Beach Hotel, used to hold license number 1. But after his death, too many people quarelled over the right to have it. So it hangs on an office wall at the motor vehicle bureau.

* * *

Any citizen, incidentally, can find out who owns a specific license plate by going to the motor vehicle bureau and paying 25 cents for the privilege.

Two Victoria Soldiers Due With Troops from Far East

Two Victoria soldiers will be among 170 officers and men arriving at Seattle from the Far East, February 28, it was announced by the national defense department.

S/Sgt. J. A. Sawicki, 865 Bewdley Avenue, and Pte. D J. Perry, 2203 Chambers Street, will go to the army personnel depot at Vancouver where they will be granted leave to their homes.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judge J. A. McGeer of the county court ruled Monday that a door-to-door salesman, working a commission, is not entitled to annual holiday with pay.

He ruled in the case of Ray Jarvie, finding the salesman had no daily shift as contemplated under the B.C. Holiday Act.

Speak Your Mind on Pet Hates

Privy in Foreground Captures Peeve Prize

BY THE JUDGE

The old Judge has had a disturbing day, what with human spiders, outdoor plumbing, cheaters in queues, brats and such. What a peevish lot of letters these are, to be sure. Anyway, the outdoor plumbing won today's $2, and the honorable mentions reel off enough pet hates to make even an affable soul like the Judge shiver a bit.

Dear Judge,

Here is what I hate most and for variety it is illustrated. "The Privy," commonly called a backhouse, is located . . . in the centre of a lovely residential district within 50 feet of my living room window. What a mess!!!!

G. E. FLEMING.

You're lucky, G.E. The pioneers had nothing to look at but trees.

Dear Judge,

Sitting in a show directly behind someone with a high feather or flowers in her hat is one thing but to have someone who has read the story or who has seen the picture before relate the next scene is most annoying.

PEARL HUGHES.

What about the people who loudly chew popcorn or rustle candy bags? No, the editor doesn't pay me overtime, but thanks for the kind words anyway.

Dear Judge,

I hate spiders. Especially I detest the insect who will feign friendship to the face while making sarcastic gestures behind the back.

Also the insect who will let a safety door of a bus swing sharply into the face of a young child. To me these are human spiders.

MISS MUFFET.

Please, Miss M.—you make me feel all crawly!

Dear Judge,

What irritates me most are the people who come along to a picture show, see a line-up outside, saunter along as if in a dream, spot a friend standing close to the door, start a conversation, and the next thing you know they have sneaked in the line and are in the theatre ahead of the folks that have stood in the line an hour or more.

M.H.B.

The South Americans have a device with two heavy balls on a rope, which should deal with this problem nicely after a little practice.

Dear Judge,

So I'm following up a magazine article or story and I come across someone with a stomach full of lettuce who is so hungry for another bite that I get indigestion.

It's in these pretty full-page advertisements where some really wealthy or successful person is endorsing either liquor, cigarettes, or reducing pills.

Ulcers to them for so selling their influence.

MARY GAY.

And ulcers to you too for reminding me I had one.

Dear Judge,

My pet hate is the people who so inconsiderately arrive home at all hours with a depressed accelerator pedal, bang doors of their car and garage, speed their departing guests with raised voices while the guests toot-toot as they roar away in high crescendo in the wee small hours.

ONE WHO DIFFERS.

Try tacks on the driveway.

Dear Judge,

Do you know any spoiled brats, better known by their parents as "cute?"

Your friends bring them when they come to visit. They won't eat the lunch you give them but grab the cake and cookies to scatter everywhere, jump all over your chesterfield, break your china, tear up your new magazines, and torture your cat till he fights back—then they scream blue murder.

I do know a few well behaved children. I wonder if they're yours?

A NERVOUS WRECK.

Not mine, Nervous. That cat sounds like it has the right system.

Dear Judge,

I hate these people who take refuge behind a nom-de-plume, but worse than that I hate to think what would happen if my wife discovered I was one of them.

JAMIE.

Might turn into a nom-de-guerre, eh?

Jack Gillis Places First In Contest

Jack Gillis, speaking on the dangers of credit buying, won first place in the Camosun Toastmasters' Club speech contest finals held last night at Terry's.

He will meet winners of contests in three other Toastmasters Clubs in Victoria for an area contest, at 5 p.m. March 11, in the Pacific Club.

Second place was won by Fred Blakeney, who spoke on the threat of polio. Tom Wilson and Colin Fensham tied for third place.

Guest judges were Gordon Williscroft, Eric Adames and Emerson Smith.

Impact of Research On Resources Told

The multi-million-dollar impact of research and survey in development of British Columbia's resources was spelled out by a parade of experts yesterday.

They were sounding the keynote of the seventh Natural Resources Conference that started its annual three-day session in the Empress Hotel with an attendance of 250 high-level delegates from government, industry and university.

One after another they told tales of forestry, fisheries and industries that all had the same moral: research and survey of natural resources pay off in millions; lack of them often result in losses just as great.

Research and survey played a large part in saving an annual revenue of $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 when a rock slide in Babine River threatened the Skeena River sockeye salmon industry in 1951.

PECULIAR SIGNS

A. L. Pritchard, fisheries conservation and development director, said that in August, 1951, field officers in the Hazelton area noticed a peculiar development in the sockeye run. Red unspawned and mutilated individuals were appearing in substantial numbers in places where they were not usually found. The river waters were unusually muddy and silted.

Mr. Pritchard said it was found that a large rock slide had occurred in the Babine River about 11 miles from its confluence with the Skeena.

Meetings of the National Research Council in Ottawa ascertained an access road was an essential to deal with the slide and any future disaster. The cost was estimated at $90,000.

"I would like to clear the record about the money," said Mr. Pritchard. "I think we broke every possible record. At noon I had a telegram asking for $90,000, and by 4 p.m. I had wired back to say the money would be available. If we had not had information it is possible we would never have been able to get started in time."

ONLY START

Loyd A. Royal, director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said the Fraser River sockeye salmon catch in 1953 exceeded the catch of the preceding three cycle years by almost $18,000,000.

Although a considerable sum, it was only a start toward the foreseeable goal of re-establishing the original economy of the Fraser River sockeye fishery, he said.

Research and surveys carried out by various B.C. governments also played a large part in the Aluminum Company of Canada's decision to establish a multi-million-dollar aluminum plant in the northern part of the province, said an Alcan official, J. S. Kendrick of Vancouver.

KNOWN FIRST

While his company spent large sums on exploration, Mr. Kendrick said, projects about which something is known get first call.

"The money spent in B.C. was approved by our directors partly because existing information was extensive enough to permit a preliminary appraisal of the project," he said.

The speaker pointed out that direct payments in provincial sales tax on equipment and materials of construction alone had exceeded $4,000,000.

"This will pay for all the research work carried out by the government, not only on this project, but probably on all the water power projects in the province."

Several B.C. woods mills are currently manufacturing large quantities of high-grade brown paper, although not one tree is being cut down for this specific purpose.

Dean G. S. Allen of the faculty of forestry, UBC, said this was an example of the value of research in the timber trade.

Farmers Plan Fall Fair

SOOKE HARBOR Sooke Farmers' Institute members, meeting in Sooke Community Hall, decided to hold a Sooke Fall Fair this year with Arnold Glinz as chairman.

L. W. Johnson, superintendent of B.C. Farmers' Institutes and Norman Putman, field crops commissionaire, will be present at the next institute meeting March 22, at 8 p.m.

Soil Soon Ready For Fruit Trees

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The spring planting of fruit trees can be undertaken just as soon as the soil is dry enough to work—in fact, the sooner the trees are in, the better, as it is most important for them to be settled down in their new home and nicely established, with lots of new feeding roots, before our summer drought period arrives.

If you are expecting delivery of fruit trees from you nurseryman, it is a good idea to get a quantity of good topsoil in under cover for a week or two before planting, to dry it off so that it can be worked down under and around the roots when planting.

I always like to store this fill-in soil on a concrete floor, whenever possible, as it is so easy to turn it and mix peat moss and fertilizer with it, using an old coal shovel for the job.

I add one bucketful of peat moss to every four of soil, and if the soil is very wet, the peat moss goes in dry, as it helps bring the soil into a workable texture. Then, for every bucketful of peat moss, I mix in one cupful of general fertilizer, such as Vigoro or Gardenite, one cupful of ground limestone, and a tablespoonful of FTE (fritted trace elements).

The planting pits should be dug comfortably big enough to take all the roots without cramping or bending, and I like to make a mound of soil in the middle of the pit so the tree roots will slope outward and downward from the centre.

MAKE MOUND FIRM

It is a good idea to make this mound pretty firm by patting it hard with the spade, so that water will be channelled out from the centre of the tree towards the root tips. The depth of the planting hole and the height of the mound should be so adjusted that the swelling above the tree roots which marks the graft union will be about three inches above the soil surface when planting is completed.

Fruit tree planting is essentially a two-man job, and should never be undertaken single-handed. One person holds the tree upright, with the roots carefully spread out in the planting pit, while the other shovels the pit about half full, using the prepared fill-in soil.

ADD SOME SOIL

At this point, the tree is jiggled up and down a few times, to cause the dried soil to work itself under and around the roots. Add a bit more soil, then a bucketful of water with a few drops of vitamin B1 in it. This watering-in will firm the soil around the roots and bring it into intimate contact with the roots far better than stamping or treading around the tree. Always finish off with dry soil.

STAKE SECURELY

Dwarf fruit trees must always be staked securely, as the graft union is much more brittle than in bigger specimens. It is a good idea, too, to mulch the newly-planted trees heavily with straw, sawdust, or grass clippings, to conserve moisture and to keep the roots cool.

It is better to leave spring-planted trees unpruned this year, cutting back to two-year-old wood next winter if necessary.

Union Lobby Asks Employment Action

OTTAWA (CP)—The powerful United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL) stormed Parliament Hill Wednesday with a 125-man lobby presenting the government and Commons with a "full employment" program aimed at stemming the rise in Canada's jobless.

The union, in the biggest mass lobby in years, sent two-man teams ganging up on individual Commons members and had its top Canadian officers place the program before cabinet ministers.

Simultaneously, the bureau of statistics—which takes a sampling of employment in 30,000 households—estimated unemployment at 280,000 during the week ended January 23. This compared with 190,000 a month earlier.

After the UAW's chief's meeting with Labor Minister Gregg and Health Minister Martin—who represents the auto workers' riding of Essex East—Canadian director George Burt of the UAW told reporters the delegation had got no commitments from the ministers.

However, he said, Mr. Gregg has agreed to study the UAW's idea of the appointment of "industry councils" in those industries hit by unemployment. The councils, with government participating, would try to figure out ways of boosting business.

The "full employment program" of Mr. Burt's union takes in a broad field, calling for federal action in many directions to stop the rise of unemployment.

Pope Ordered To Bed

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Pope, still gravely ill with an undiagnosed gastric illness, Wednesday was confined to bed by his doctors after what was described as a "fairly good" night.

No official announcement was made Wednesday by the Vatican on his condition. A statement Tuesday night by the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano said that "the development of the Holy Father's illness is markedly slow."

The Pope slept for nearly five hours Wednesday afternoon, but this rest failed to entirely banish occasional attacks of hiccups.

He has agreed to be examined today by two Italian specialists. He is not strong enough for an X-ray examination.

Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi Lisi, the pontiff's personal physician, and his assistants Wednesday were reported to have resumed the round-the-clock bedside watch which they gave up two weeks ago when the Pope—78 next Tuesday—began to rally from his first serious stomach disturbance.

Listed Canadians in Red Prisons

Soldier Honored for Keeping Book

OTTAWA (CP)—L.Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City has been awarded the British Empire Medal by the Queen, the army announced Wednesday.

Dugal, 22, came out of Communist captivity in Korea April 21, 1953, with a little black notebook which he had managed to keep hidden from the Reds. In that notebook he had written the names of 15 fellow Canadians who were prisoners of war. Later he remembered having seen a 16th—Capt. Michael Liston of Ottawa.

The army, which up to that time had been able to list only one Canadian as prisoner of war, checked Dugal's story closely. On the strength of his evidence alone, it listed all 16 officially as prisoners.

Dugal's score turned out to be perfect. When the final prisoner exchange was completed last September following the Korean armistice, all 16 men listed by Dugal had been returned as prisoners. Besides these 16, two other Canadians were repatriated by the Communists.

Dugal was taken prisoner when a company of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, went out on patrol. He was struck by a mortar fragment and was captured. He was a prisoner for nearly a year until released in the exchange of wounded captives.

Army Chief Surrenders To McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army Secretary Robert Stevens bowed to demands by Senator Joseph McCarthy Wednesday, and today's widely-heralded showdown on McCarthy's charges of alleged army "Communist coddling" was called off.

An agreement reached at a meeting Wednesday resulted in cancellation of what was to be a nationally-televised encounter between the Wisconsin Republican and the 54-year-old army chief.

In a sudden change of attitude, Stevens agreed not only to give McCarthy's Senate investigations sub-committee "the names of everyone involved" in a disputed case, but also promised they would be produced as witnesses.

Stevens last week had ordered two generals not to answer subpoenas to testify before McCarthy. He said he took this action because McCarthy's "unfair" and "abusive" investigative tactics were wrecking army morale and prestige. McCarthy replied that Stevens was a "dupe."

KELOWNA (BUP)—District parents were warned to be on the lookout for 1,000 dynamite caps stolen from the powder magazine of the S.M. Simpson Ltd. storage plant at Knox Mountain.

Two hundred of the caps have been recovered and the RCMP roped off the area where they were found scattered along the mountainside.

Dulles Says Red China To Face World Opinion

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles says Communist China will be brought "to account before the bar of world opinion" at the Geneva peace conference.

In a country-wide radio-television address Wednesday night Dulles dismissed as "without basis" any fear that agreement to the April 26 meeting implies diplomatic recognition of Red China. The Chinese Communists will be seated at the Geneva conference, which will discuss the future of Korea and seek to attain peace in Indo-China.

Dulles assailed critics who have contended the seating of Red China at Geneva means the opening wedge toward U.S. diplomatic recognition.

Such criticism, Dulles said, tends to give the Communists "a success which they could not win" at the Berlin Big Four ministers' conference.

"But the Communist regime will not come to Geneva to be honored by us, but rather to account before the bar of world opinion," he said.

Library Service

TO those who have studied it here and in other growing communities, the future of efficient public library service rests in a pooling of resources and level-headed co-operation, and not in a multiplication of small, individual efforts. One had expected that given time and opportunity the Greater Victoria community would grow naturally into a combined library district, with a main, central library in the city and directly related circulating branches as required in each of the surrounding municipalities. There is satutory provision now for the creation of a "union library district," with the means of financing itself.

Victoria heretofore has hesitated over proposing the step because it involves municipal co-operation, not always easy to secure, and some loss of autonomy for the city itself in a matter where it has borne the brunt of library development from pioneer times. The Mechanics Institute collection of books was the genesis of the Victoria Public Library. The Carnegie grant (once only and then for a building alone) provided its first individual home. The $350,000 addition which Victoria ratepayers voluntarily built a few years ago will provide all essential accommodation in the city itself for 20 years to come. Branch service from that centre might well be considered the next step.

It is a step that will never be taken, however, if the city persists in the present day trend of exacting its pound of flesh from the neighboring municipalities. A library is a collection of books and books must be housed somewhere, at owned or rental cost. But why should Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt over and above this be billed without direct vote for the debt retirement charges? Reeve Casey has made that point. Oak Bay occupies the middle position of being willing to consider amortization of costs on a long range basis. Esquimalt has met the city's bills without protest. But this does not bring them all together, and short of willing co-operation in one library service there is little prospect of advance in all four municipalities "going it alone." The City Council might well reconsider its billing of debenture debt charges against the neighboring municipalities, in the interests of both fairness and harmony.

Scoutcraft in Emergency

FOR saving the life of a younger companion last summer two Duncan boys, Howard Bell, 15, and John Dirom, 13, have been honored for bravery by the Boy Scouts Association of Canada. The account of the courageous rescue given in the citation makes special reference to their quick thinking and presence of mind, and it is that side of the incident as much as the act of bravery itself which entitles the lads to the highest praise. Their conduct throughout was an outstanding example of level-headed efficiency under stress.

In his own story of the rescue the older lad, after describing how he and his friend contrived to bring the drowning boy to the surface and to shore, went on to say: "When we got him ashore he was unconscious. I sent John for a doctor and laid Billy on the ground and started artificial respiration, which I had learned in the Scouts." A part of that account which merits special emphasis is the last phrase, "which I had learned in the Scouts." It is an impressive illustration of the value of Scout training, through which the unconscious boy was revived before adult assistance arrived. With no other help immediately at hand, there is little doubt that the rescued boy owes his life to the fact that a 15-year-old Boy Scout knew exactly what to do and how to do it, confidently and quickly.

The value of the Scout movement, as incidents of this kind show, goes far beyond providing growing boys with hobbies and healthy outlets for their energies. By its stress on outdoor activities and self-development it helps boys to gain self-reliance and a sense of responsibility, without which knowledge of what should be done in an emergency may not be sufficient. Along these lines the Boy Scout movement for 45 years has been offering training invaluable both to the individual and to the community, and it is always gratifying to see these practical demonstrations of its worth.

Defending the Coasts

THERE is a reminder of the colossal cost of military preparedness, all of which can be laid at the door of the Communist threat, in the news that Canadair will build 50 new Britannia-type airplanes for the RCAF. These huge patrol craft represent an order worth 200 millions of dollars, which means that each plane runs to a price of four millions. This is a far cry from the $25,000 which built a fighter plane in the early years of the war and the $100,000 required to produce a bomber. Armaments have vastly exceeded every cost-of-living index in their upward cost climb.

Another aspect of course is that these reconnaissance planes will be built in Canada and thus provide work for thousands of employees directly and indirectly. The contract also reflects the growing capacity of this country to produce items once foreign to its assembly lines and the tremendous manufacturing capacities still latent among the craftsmen of this land. If necessary Canada could turn out practically any item for defense purposes, as matters stand the only restraint being the practicality of duplication among allies creating a common front against aggression.

The Britannia aircraft will take over where that sturdy veteran of war and postwar flying service, the Lancaster, leaves off. Vital to the defense of Canada is the constant coastal vigil kept by the RCAF, even if at the moment such air-sea patrol seems to be confined peculiarly enough, mainly to one coast only. Once they start rolling off the assembly lines the new planes will certainly bolster the protective screen thrown far out into the Atlantic Ocean. One would like to think that some of the 50 would find their way out to the Pacific Coast, but until defense headquarters adopts some device enabling it to see past, over or through the Rocky Mountains perhaps that remains too much to hope for.

ORIGIN OF "BIG BEN"

Sir, With reference to the article "How Big Ben Got Its Name" in your issue of the Islander for February 21, Sir Benjamin Hall was a very short man (5ft., 3 or 4 ins.), and this is what gave point to the M.P.'s proposal to call the clock "Big Ben."

I am able to speak with assurance on this detail as Sir Benjamin Hall was my great-uncle and we have photographs of him in England.

A. D. BERRINGTON,

THE COMPOSER BACH

Sir,—"From My Organ Loft" is the column I turn first in your magazine. But when I read therein the disagreeable portrait of J. S. Bach my eyes bulged. Horrying on to the end of the article, I discovered the point. More people might listen to Bach's music if he were known to be something of a cad.

Allowing for the compression imposed on columnists, the portrait seems unduly weighted, on two points at least.

Bach's obsequiousness and Uriah Heap tactics; ornate professions of respect were a custom of aristocratic society, impersonal formulae not so very different from some of those we still use when addressing royalty. The same niches can be found matched on the works of other 17th and 18th century composers.

Bach's family relationships left much to be desired. Anna Magdalena, the second wife, was devoted to him and recognized him as a genius, one century earlier than most other people. The biography she wrote portrays him as a conscientious father, giving a musical education to all his 12 or 14 children, in addition to working for his employers. One son became a famous composer. His works are of historical importance in the development of the symphonic style of writing.

The painting of "Bach and his family holding a musical evening" is no doubt idealized. But the life of no other great composer could have furnished the subject of such a pleuge; at least not Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Brahms, Wagner or Tchaikowsky.

NOT ALL STATESMEN

Sir, Some of the more intelligent of our young men when they become intellectually alive study our system of government and all it implies, and naturally find it capable of being considerably improved. Seeking further enlightenment they read their own choice of books, investigate our politics, our service clubs, chambers of commerce, etc.; find good in all of them, but not the answers to all their questions. So they go outside for further information and possibly join international organizations, not always wisely maybe but it is all education. It is obvious that only by finding out what systems of government exist can they know what is best suited to our people. These young men, when they mature and still retain their idealism, become our finest statesmen. History has proved this time and time again, but how many are sacrificed to ignorance and stubborness, and how do our local pundits treat such young men? We have seen. In spite of overwhelming protests by our more enlightened citizens, this treatment continues. This fumbling of our democracy and the freedoms it is supposed to engender can be dangerous.

"THIS GUY SAYS HE'S THE LANDLORD AND WOULD WE KINDLY MAKE LESS NOISE"

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

I READ that the Totem Theatre may not stick it out very much longer, the financial odds being too great. This will be a pity, without a doubt. The Totem players are first-rate people and have staged many a fine performance.

I'm not sure though that their predicament is warrant for Victoria being lectured yet again on its aesthetic ignorance. I doubt that any city of our size is able to support a repertory company of this nature.

I use the term "able to support" advisedly, for I think this a pertinent aspect of the whole question of so-called cultural groups and their ability to survive.

People cannot put their hand to every plough. Family purses stretch only so far. Sometimes there are simply too many things going on for them all to be well patronized.

* * *

That's financial. Physically it's also impossible to take everything in. Cultural events have to compete with other engagements as well as radio, movies and TV. There are at least two hundred, perhaps three hundred, clubs, societies or organizations of one kind or another functioning in this community, mostly all as busy as bees and occupying the energies of their members. Incidentally, a host of them stage functions which dip into personal pockets too.

Nor is everyone who doesn't attend regularly at dramatic, musical or artistic exhibitions guilty of twiddling their thumbs at home in primitive apathy. Some individuals may like to sit and think, an art in itself and one productive of human enrichment. Others may indulge in conversation, which on occasion can provide as much intellectual stimulus as any musical or dramatic presentation.

Of equal quiet content is the realm of literature, not shouted from local housetops but pursued with benefit by many Victorians. A good book is the equal of any opera, landscape or play.

Ballets, symphony orchestras, art centres and the like, the cultural agencies which operate with a capital C, seem to have a tough time in every land. Not infrequently they are state subsidized to keep them going. This might suggest to some allegedly uncouth person that these are the pleasures of the minority else were this not so the majority in every land would keep their ledgers out of the red.

I won't make such a suggestion, however.

* * *

The point I do wish to make is that I do not consider Victoria is steeped in boorish barbarism because the Totem Theatre or any other artistic venture has to close its doors. Nor are movies, dances and amateur theatricals necessarily the resort of the uncultured.

The symphony orchestra is hard up. So is the arts centre. So I suppose are all the up-lift groups. (I use the term up-lift respectfully, simply to get away from the word culture, which has too many snobbish connotations, and which doesn't mean the same thing to all persons). If we had a civic auditorium or rather a comprehensive civic centre embracing auditorium, art gallery, theatre, adjacent rehearsal and music rooms, quite likely their future operations would be greatly eased.

These groups must engage the interest, regular or intermittent, of thousands of people in the Greater Victoria area. But do they lift one hand to promote a civic centre, of which they would be the chief beneficiaries?

They do not. They seem to want it handed to them on a platter, and presumably by those who are beyond the cultural pale.

Reports from Ottawa

THE comments of T. H. Atkinson, vice-president and general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, make it clear that the chartered banks don't want to enter the home mortgage field.

That isn't what you might call news. I reported in this column last October that the banks were sour on the idea, and that Prime Minister St. Laurent's pre-session announcement of the government's bank mortgage plan was designed to enlist public opinion so the banks would be forced into this lending field.

What is new is that the banks are dubious as to whether they will be of very much help in maintaining the flow of mortgage money, and consequently the 1953 volume of home construction.

By putting on a poor mouth, as the old expression goes, they may be trying to influence the government to abandon the plan. Or it may really be true that the banks can't put much money into home mortgages without either over-extending themselves or reducing their equally important business and industrial loans.

* * *

Atkinson appeared before the Commons' banking and commerce committee last Friday as the Royal Bank G.M. rather than as president of the Canadian Bankers' Association. Despite his obvious misgivings, he told the committee that his bank would try to make the plan work. He couldn't speak for the other banks.

His key statement to the committee considering the housing bill was that "It would be wrong for anyone to conceive that a substantial proportion of the available lending funds in the banks can be made available for the purpose of the bill."

A day earlier Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, had told the committee that the chartered banks could put $100,000,000 a year into mortgages without reducing their commercial and industrial loans. He foresaw them investing "modestly" in mortgages, perhaps less than 25 per cent of their deposits.

Atkinson's comments make it clear that someone is talking nonsense. Even 10 per cent of bank deposits in mortgages would be too high, he said. The only hope he sees for success of the government's plan is if enough private investors come forward to buy mortgages from the banks.

* * *

If the banks make the scheme work—and despite Atkinson's pessimism there's a strong belief here that they can—they'll accomplish a number of things.

They'll win the gratitude of Parliament and the country, and they'll win new friends among people who have had no previous reason to develop warm appreciation of these basic financial institutions.

But more important, they'll also conduct a brilliant defense of their own way of life—the way of private enterprise—against the ideological onslaught of state socialism.

For the banks are private enterprise's last reserve in the housing battle. If they fail, the housing program won't grind to a halt. It's too important to the nation for the government to allow that. But it will then be financed at least partly by public money. If that happens, free enterprise will have suffered a moral defeat which could have far-reaching effects.

All this has been made clear to the banks, and they now know there's no ducking the social responsibility the government is thrusting upon them.

Founded on Love

(From The Toronto Telegram)

WHAT has been described as a "baby selling racket" involving several millions of dollars will be aired in the courts in due course. If persons are found guilty of the sordid business of trafficking in children they will be punished, and, for a time the hubbub will die down, only to be revived, it may be sure, at a later date when the demand of childless couples for children will lead to further transgressions by unscrupulous people.

The pathetic thing about these shady transactions is that they are inspired by the purest motives. It is love, a beseeching yearning for a child that moves a couple to desperate measures to fill their want. So compelling is their desire and so ardent their instinct of affection that they cannot endure the delays attached to legal processes of adoption and money to them is of no account in their search for the happiness that a child will bring them. Reports indicate that large sums have been paid by people of ordinary circumstances for a child.

There is sadness in this, and something very creditable. It is safe to say that a couple that is driven to the extremity of evading or violating the law is a couple that will provide a child with as good a home as they can afford and surround it with love.

It is those who exploit maternal desire for their own profit who make of a beautiful aspiration a shabby contemptible business.

The law and the courts will deal with people of that kind, but to put an end to, or at least curtail, this business the co-operation of child adoption agencies is essential.

People who used to laugh at Maritimers chewing dulse have been confounded by the scientists who report that seaweeds contain "carotene, thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2), asorbic acid (C) and notably large amounts of cobalamin (B12)." Our Maritime confidant says that of course his ancestors knew all that.

The raw recruits were more raw than ever that morning, and so was the sergeant-major. He decided to make an example of Private Brown.

"Brown," he bawled. "Take two paces to the rear!"

Two men stepped out of the ranks. The sergeant-major glowered at the second man. "Hey! You!" he shouted. "Is your name Brown, too?"

"No, Green, sir."

Then are you deaf, daft, or what?"

"No, color blind, sir!"

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

YOU sometimes wonder how all the little stores that line the business streets up town, down town, hundreds of them, thousands of them, can possibly make a living. Some of them are such quiet, shy little shops. You can understand the grocery stores and the butcher shops: people are always wanting something in a hurry, something handy; and people are always eating.

But the fancy goods stores, the modest little shops with china ornaments in the window, the small furniture places, the antique and art shops, there are sometimes two in a block. And there they sit, apparently thriving, or at the very least subsisting, despite the giant competition of the great department stores, chain stores, mass production stores, if you can use such a term.

It could be that some personal relation, some friendly intimacy is required by a fairly large section of the shopping public. Many of us apparently like to go into little quiet shops. And now and then, a genius for salesmanship is to be found in the owners of these smaller emporia. In our neighborhood there was, for years, a rather dowdy little pet shop which dealt in canaries, budgies and the feeds and cages and amenities that go with pets. About three months ago it quietly failed, and a new owner moved in, to operate it still as a pet shop.

The transformation was enough to make you halt in your tracks as you walked along the old familiar street. Paint, and brightly polished windows, a new and lively stock of goods literally invited you to stop, look and enter for a glance around.

But the new owner had rigged a loud speaker in the transom over his door. And all day long, the riot of bird song rang out over the street as you passed by, so that you stopped, looked and also listened. You just had to go inside to see the canaries and budgies that were making all this joyous sound.

"I'm doing all the former business," said the new owner, "in bird seed, pet foods, medicines, and so forth. But I am also selling more birds than I can lay hold of."

You encounter ideas uptown as well as down.

Landing 'Hands-off'

DETAILS have now been released explaining how it is that Britain's big jet bomber, the Victor, can be landed by the pilot "hands-off." This very useful property is a great advantage in blind landing techniques in bad weather, because the pilot, after he has been directed to the runway's end by radar or radio aids, does not have to "hold-off" the runway, but can leave the aircraft to land itself.

The underlying reasons for this self-landing quality are connected with the changing airflow and air forces relative to the wing as the aircraft flies close to the ground.

These come about because as the plane nears the ground there is a reduction in what is called downwash; downwash is the deflection of the airflow downwards on passing the wing. This ground effect on downwash results in a modification of the angle at which the airflow meets the wing, and of the lift of the wing.

The result is that as the aircraft nears the ground there is an increase in lift, and because with the swept wing this increase occurs mostly forward of the centre of gravity there is a tendency for the nose of the aircraft to lift.

This reduction in downwash near the ground can also cause a change in the angle at which the tail meets the airflow. This produces a nose-downward movement—the opposite of that on the wing—and helps to ensure that nose-up tendency is moderated so that there is no stall. The actual amount of movement depends on a number of factors such as the size of the tail and its height relative to the wing and relative to the ground.

So by careful attention to the design of wing and tailplane, it is possible to evolve the self-landing airplane.

The sequence of events in the crescent wing Victor is as follows: On the approach the pilot sets the stick and allows sufficient throttle to produce the desired gradient for reaching the runway. The aircraft begins to encounter ground effect in a small way about 50 feet up, and it becomes marked at about 25 feet.

As the plane sinks there is a slight nose-up tendency. Because of excessive lift, the approach gradient is reduced, i.e., the angle flattens out. At the same time, the speed begins to fall. These effects accumulate until the aircraft is sinking slowly on the runway at a speed slightly above the stall. Following this "round out" the plane touches down on the main wheels, the nose pitches forward, and the aircraft settles firmly on the runway.

A PADRE IN PRINT

BY REV. WILLIAM HILLS

The ghost of a kindly Anglican clergyman and Cambridge wrangler stands astride most of the countries of the world today.

Canada, the United States, the Scandinavian countries and the Sahara Desert seem to have escaped his shadow—for the nonce.

Even England, whose first census in March, 1801, was taken at the instigation of a private member's bill in the House of Commons, is beginning to feel the pinch of his prognostications.

In rough figures we know that whereas Great Britain has 480 inhabitants to the square mile and England no fewer than 670, Canada has only 3.5, Australia 2.1 and New Zealand about 1.7.

* * *

The year 1793 saw the publication of William Godwin's "Enquiry Concerning Political Justice and Its Influence on Morals and Happiness."

In this work he advanced the argument that all human ills were due to the imperfection of human government institutions. He maintained that, given good laws and good government, there was no reason why man could not attain to a perfect existence on earth.

Then in 1798, the voice of Thomas Robert Malthus was heard.

He contended that such earthly perfection could not be realized because human misery was not the result of human injustice and bad government. There was, he said, the application of an inexorable law of nature—namely—that population tends to outstrip subsistence.

Mostly all of his contempories were shocked by his suggestion. They did not hesitate to denounce him. They even went so far as to dub him a modern Herod who delighted in the slaughter of the innocents.

Malthus asserted that only the "positive checks" of misery, vice, and the moral restraint or abstinence from marriage saved the world from over-population.

It would seem, therefore, that Mussolini was wrong. Medals should be given to bachelors! Away with the baby bonus!

* * *

Let's see—it was 156 years ago when Parson Malthus published his "Essay on the Principle of Population." Was the man talking through his hat?

The nub of Malthus' argument was that whilst subsistence—production of food, clothing, shelter—increases in an arithmetical series (i.e.) 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, etc., population sweeps forward in a geometric ratio.

In other words, in any given period of time, the number of new mouths to feed outstrips the given resources for the maintenance of an ample standard of life.

In September of 1948, Sir Henry Tizard, then president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, emphasized the gravity of the problem of increasing world population as against the almost static condition of world agricultural production.

He pictured the situation in these terms.

Science had lengthened the span of man's life to such an extent that hunger was apparently about to shorten it again; population curbs, he submitted, were no longer effective; war is less deadly than it was; disease is being brought under control; there was no new dramatic discovery in sight by which the world could suddenly increase production as it did with the discovery and the use of chemical fertilizers.

In short, the world already has too many people for the food supply available, and world population continues to increase.

Statistical evidence shows that 300 years ago, the total population of the world was 445 million people. In 1948, it had increased to the astonishing figure of 2,251 millions.

When the staid old New York Times saw that, the editors took their pencils in hand and came up with this terrifying equation. If, they said, people continue to have babies in the future at the rate they had had them from 1936 to 1946, by the year 2240, the skin of this earth would be crawling with 21,000 millions of human kind!

There can be no doubt about it—whether we like it or not—the Rev. Thomas Robert Malthus will be present at the councils of the great even though his heart stopped beating—quite suddenly—on December 23, 1834.

Pupils' Art Varied Show

Education week got off to a fine start Tuesday when an exhibition of local school children's art was opened at the Arts Centre.

Walter P. Jeune, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, formally opened the show in the afternoon. A wide range of exhibits from papier mache animals to portraits is on view.

Cash prizes will go to the four students who best portray the growth and interest of the young artist.

In Police Court Yesterday

Tax Return Defaulter Fined $100

Edward A. Estlin, 853 Yates Street, was fined $100 and $2.50 costs or 28 days in jail in city police court yesterday for failing to file income tax forms.

He was charged for being in default four days. There were two similar previous convictions against him.

"The defendant has been convicted before and just refuses to file them," James Proudfoot, counsel for the Crown, told Magistrate H. C. Hall.

THREE OTHERS FINED

Three other people were fined $25 and $2.50 costs or seven days on charges of failing to file income tax returns.

They were Arthur Doble, 1029 Douglas; Mrs. Gertrude McDonell, 1323 Government Street, and Einar Norgaard, 1415 Store Street.

A similar charge against the Angela Hotel Ltd., 923 Burdett, was remanded until next Wednesday, to allow a director of the company to appear in court.

William M. Piluke, Work Point Barracks, was fined $35 or five days on a careless driving charge. A report will be sent to the motor vehicle branch.

For walking against a red traffic light Mary Benson, 1064 Lodge Avenue, was fined $1.

The offense took place at Johnson and Douglas. "That is a very dangerous corner. You are endangering yourself and others," the magistrate warned her.

Arrested in Vancouver earlier this month, Bob Cowan, 21, no fixed address, alias James Sinclair, was charged with forging a $50 money order here January 11.

He pleaded not guilty and was remanded to Wednesday for trial.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Judgment was reserved on a careless driving charge against R. J. Smith, 1121 Faithful.

Old Bill, a regular court visitor on intoxication charges, was sentenced to 20 days.

"Can't I get a floater, your honor?" he asked.

"No, you can't get a floater," Magistrate Hall answered.

Death Ruled Accidental

SIDNEY—An inquiry into the death of Mrs. Kate Beswick, 74, of Dixon Avenue, has resulted in a finding of accidental death by drowning caused by a collapse.

The inquiry was conducted here yesterday by Dr. E. C. Hart, coroner.

The body of Mrs. Beswick was found in a water-filled ditch on East Saanich Road Monday morning.

Services Planned In Appeal

Opening of the Red Cross Society national appeal for funds Monday will be marked by special services in churches and synagogues across Canada Sunday.

Leslie G. Mills, CBE, chairman of the national executive committee in Toronto, announced this week that Saturday and Sunday have been designated Red Cross Sabbath.

Special mention of the Red Cross appeal in Victoria for $72,000, will be made in all city churches this week end.

QUOTA FOR B.C.

The quota for B.C. this year has been set at $623,000, and Red Cross officials say this sum must be realized if the society is to carry on its essential services for the coming year.

In charge of the Victoria campaign will be co-chairmen Ernest Heybroek and E. F. Wainwright.

Brown Foiled in Lone-Handed Effort

Toby Brown, high scoring forward of Victoria Merchants, potted what proved to be winning goal at Memorial Arena last night as his club got past Victoria Vs in first game of best-of-five semi-final, but he was balked on this effort. No less than five of Vs are defending closely. Defenseman Bob Burrows is directly behind Brown, extreme right, while Bill Helgeson, Bob Fowler and Les Corby, from left to right, are moving in to help protect goalie Arnold Jorgenson.

Clippers Again Best Sailors; Merchants Lead Other Semi

BY IAN GLENDAY

Nanaimo Clippers, who won the Vancouver Island Commercial Hockey League championship in a breeze, turned in one of their best displays of the season on Memorial Arena ice last night, turning back a short-handed Navy squad, 6-4, to take a two-game lead in their semi-final series.

In the other game played last night, defending champion Victoria Merchants caught Victoria V's with a rush, scoring three goals in the first period and holding on for a 3-2 decision in the opening game of their best-of-five semi-final series.

SWEEP EXPECTED

Navy and Clippers resume their battle at Nanaimo Saturday night and the Clippers are heavily favored to wind up the series in straight games. Nanaimo lost only once in six meetings with the sailors at Nanaimo, where the Clippers compiled a fine 16-2 season's record. V's and Merchants meet in the second game of their series at Memorial Arena Saturday night at 8.30 p.m.

Most of the hockey in the Nanaimo-Navy battle was packed into the first period. From there, it was rather dullish for the crowd of about 1,800 as the teams appeared to be only going through the motions at times.

Although Clippers held a wide edge in play througnout, Navy had several good chances in a wide-open and scoreless first period that was featured by end-to-end rushes, solid checking and some brilliant netminding by Navy's Al Millin and youthful Walt Davis.

LET-DOWN

But the sailors, who appeared tired and listless in the second frame, let down and Clippers had a 2-0 bulge after less than three minutes of play and a 4-0 edge at the end of the period. Nanaimo made it 6-1 with two quick goals at the start of the third session but the losers, picking up slightly, scored the last three goals, two of them in the space of 24 seconds with Nanaimo's Arnie Duggan serving a hooking penalty.

Nanaimo iced its strongest team here for several weeks and had playing-coach Eddie Shamlock, who sat out a one-game suspension at Nanaimo Saturday, back in harness. The fiery veteran drew the wrath of the pro-Navy crowd in the third frame when he boarded Navy's Ted Audette, who fell to the ice unconscious.

Audette returned to take his regular shift but team-mate Dave Haugh was forced to the sidelines with an injured leg, joining John Bond, who is out with a broken jaw.

DOROHOY A REFEREE

Referee Ed Dorohoy, subbing for Ross Valliere, kept the game well in hand although calling eight of the nine penalties in the third period.

In the opening game, unassisted goals by Bill Jensen and Ron Bremner in the first three minutes of play and a goal by Toby Brown at the 10-minute mark gave Merchants a 3-0 lead before V's could get started.

Bob Fowler got one back for V's in the second period and Jack Milburn made it 3-2 with less than three minutes remaining. Keeping up the pressure, the losers forced goalie George Hall to make several brilliant saves in the final two minutes and pulled Arnold Jorgenson out of the nets with 45 seconds remaining in an effort to get the equalizer.

EZZARD CHARLES

Rocky Signs To Meet Charles in Title Bout

NEW YORK (UP) — Ex-champion Ezzard Charles was granted his second chance to recapture the world heavyweight crown Wednesday when matched for a title fight with unbeaten Rocky Marciano at Yankee Stadium, June 17.

The only former heavy ruler to get two opportunities for regaining the fight game's most valuable crown was James J. Corbett. He failed, as did the five other ex-champs who made the one attempt.

Announcing the 15-round match, promoter Jim Norris said he expected 29-year-old Marciano and 32-year-old Charles to draw a gate ranging between $500,000 and $600,000. Whether it will be televised to homes or merely to theatres will be decided later.

THIRD DEFENSE

Marciano of Brockton, Mass., will receive 40 per cent of all net receipts for his third defense, in which he seeks his 46th straight professional victory and his 41st knockout. Charles will get 20 per cent.

Ezzard of Cincinnati was preferred over Nino Valdes of Cuba as challenger because of his gate appeal and because most boxing men consider him a better fighter, Norris said.

Should Ezzard become the first man to regain the heavy crown by tagging the Brockton, Mass., blockbuster with his first defeat, he must grant Rocky a return title bout within 90 days, the promoter emphasized.

Norris grinned as he said it and added, "The return bout would make us a fine September fight."

Al Weill, Marciano's manager, squirmed in his chair and said, "Now don't say that. We expect a hard fight, but we'll win it."

June 17, the fight date, falls on a Thursday; but if rain should wash out the bout that night, it would be postponed to Monday, June 21, Norris emphasized.

Wednesday's scores: Boston 5, New York 3.

Next games, tonight: Toronto at Montreal, Detroit at Chicago.

NEW YORK (AP) — Left winger Dave Creighton hammered in two tallies in less than a minute Wednesday night as Boston Bruins skated to a four-goal lead and held on to beat New York Rangers 5-3 at Madison Square Garden.

THREE POINTS UP

The victory increased the Bruins fourth-place margin over the Rangers to three points in the National Hockey League race.

The Bruins now have 59 points and 10 games left to play. New York has 56 points with 11 remaining.

Creighton's goals, which came early in the second period, climaxed a blistering Boston offensive. They were his 15th and 16th of the season.

A crowd of 13,645 saw the Bruins jump off to a 2-0 lead at the first period's half-way mark, Rookie Doug Mohns scored at 5:25 with two Rangers in the penalty box. Then at 10:55 with New York enjoying a one-man edge, Warren Godfrey picked up Milt Schmidt's relay at centre ice and beat Johnny Bower in the new York nets.

STRIKE BACK

The Rangers broke through for three quick goals midway in the second period. Defenseman Harry Howell touched off the uprising when he drilled a 25-footer into the Boston goal at 10:45. Little Wally Hergesheimer then came through with two markers, the first at 12:56 and the second at 13:37.

New York continued to dominate play in the third period, but with only a minute to go, Bower was pulled out of the cage and Fleming Mackell came in alone to whip the clincher into the unguarded net at 19:25.

A third-period brawl broke out among four players. Ivan Irwin and Leo Reise of New York and Cal Gardner and Joe Klukay of the Bruins were the participants. Both Boston players wound up on the ice and all four players were handed major penalties.

SUMMARY

First period: 1, Boston, Mohns (Sandford) 5:25. 2, Boston, Godfrey (Schmidt) 10:55. Penalties, Guidolin 4:30, Evans 9:15, Godfrey 8:45, Klukay 9:40, Evans 12:46, Armstrong 18:35.

Next game: Tonight, New Westminster at Calgary.

EDMONTON (CP) — New Westminster Royals and Edmonton Flyers battled to a 2-2 tie before 4,500 fans Wednesday night in a Western Hockey League game.

Veteran Ollie Dorohoy and Len Thornson were Royals' marksmen. Don Poile and Marcel Bonin sniped goals for Edmonton, the latter sinking the equalizer midway through the final period. The single point moved Royals into a tie with Victoria Cougars for fifth place, three points behind Edmonton.

It was a battle between goal tenders Lucien Dechene of New Westminster and Glenn Hall of Edmonton. Dechene turned aside 38 shots to 27 handled by Hall.

DECHENE A HELP

Dechene kept Royals in contention in a busy opening period which saw Flyers parked constantly on his doorstep. He made 17 saves in the session. But Edmonton managed a 1-0 lead when Poile slipped the puck under him on a breakaway with Enio Sclisizzi after the pair eluded the lone defender, Ron Matthews.

Tempers flared late in the initial frame, Hall and Royal rearguard Lloyd Durham drawing a major and a minor penalty apiece for a stick slashing and chopping duel in the goal crease.

Dorohoy tied the score early in the second period, his close-in drive off Bobby Love's pass dribbling through Hall's legs.

Early in the third, Thornson flipped a 10-foot shot at a difficult angle into the short side past Hall. Bonin made it 2-2 when he hooked a low backhander past Dechene while partially checked by Royal defenseman Jim Bedard.

In the final period great work by Hall, who stopped 15 shots, saved Flyers.

SUMMARY

First period—1, Edmonton, D. Poile Sclisizzi 9:33. Penalties, Bedard 4:18, Matthews 13:42, Collin 16:54, Durnan 18:41 (minor and major), Hell 18:41 (minor and major, served by O'Grady).

HAMILTON (CP)—Manitoba and Saskatchewan rinks remained tied for first place in the Canadian high school curling championship and the Sifton Trophy by taking victories in the seventh draw of the tournament Wednesday night.

Manitoba shaded Northern Ontario 6-5 while Saskatchewan piled up the biggest score of the bonspiel, walloping Nova Scotia 22-5.

Saskatchewan moved into a first-place tie with Manitoba when Saskatoon Technical College edged the Winnipeg Gordon Bell High School rink, 8-7, in an afternoon game.

Bayne Secord, 18-year-old Saskatoon skip, handled his rink well and called on his own skill to wrap up the game. Saskatoon took a 3-0 lead in the first two ends. Then Winnipeg's skip Gene Walker and his crew came back with a three-ender in the third. The Secord rink led 6-4 going into the seventh and again Walker tied it.

EIGHTH END CRUCIAL

The turning point of the match came in the eighth end with the score tied 6-6. Secord, preparing to throw the final rock of the end, faced four Manitoba counters widely spread in the house. He drew a bead and put his rock right on the button.

Saskatoon picked up another point in the ninth and Manitoba added one in the 10th.

Favored Players Advance In Canadian Shuttle Play

VANCOUVER (CP) — Only two seeded players, both juniors, were upset here Wednesday, in singles play during the opening day's play in the four-day Canadian badminton championships.

With both men's and women's singles down to the quarter-finals, champions Don Smythe and Marjory Shedd of Toronto led the parade of seeded players who moved easily into the eights.

But third-seeded junior William Pigeon of Oakville and fourth-seeded Valeria Brown of Winnipeg weren't so lucky.

Pigeon squeaked by Don McIvor of Calgary 17-16, 17-16 in a torrid opening match then lost his quarter-final 15-9, 15-10 to Harold Moody of Montreal, who was not seeded.

Miss Brown defeated Mary Levirs of Cranbrook, B.C., then took an 11-4, 11-7 defeat from Quebec junior champion Heather Doig of Montreal. Miss Doig meets top-seeded Jean Waring of Calgary in her semi-final today.

With all eight seeded men's singles players moving into the semifinals, the draw will pit top-seeded Smythe against eighth-seeded Bruce Benham of Vancouver. Second-seeded Bev Westcott, Toronto, meets seventh-seeded John Bouck, Vancouver; third-seeded Daryl Thompson, Vancouver, takes on sixth Tom Matthews of Winnipeg and fourth Jack Muir of Toronto meets fifth Dave McTaggart of Vancouver.

In women's singles, the draw will pit in order of seeding, Miss Shedd against Dee Edgell of Vancouver; second Lois Reid, Vancouver against Jean Waring of Calgary; third Joan Hennessy, Toronto, against Jean Bardsley, Vancouver; and fourth Claire Lovett, Vancouver, against Joan Warren, Toronto.

VICTORIANS WIN

Joyce McDonald and Muriel Knott, the Victoria women's doubles champions, racked up two victories in opening rounds. They defeated Lois Field and Fran Thomson of Vancouver, 15-7, 17-16, and followed up with a 15-12, 15-2 victory over Cal Holmgren of Edmonton and Vivien O'Grady of Vancouver.

Jimmy Wells of Victoria defaulted his singles match to Daryl Thompson of Vancouver. Wells and Reg Hoadley dropped a 15-10, 15-6 decision to Jack Muir and Bev Westcott of Toronto in the doubles and Wells and Maureen Bray of Toronto were beaten in mixed doubles play by Nora Maw and Frank Carter of Vancouver.

England's XI Aims at Draw In Third Test

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—England, with the evident plan of playing for a draw, fell back on go-slow tactics Wednesday, the first day of the third test cricket match against the West Indies.

At stumps England had scored only 153 runs for two wickets.

The scoring was so slow against the tight West Indies bowling that the crowd became restive at one stage and began shouting and hand-clapping.

Len Hutton made 84 not out, his highest score of the tour, but he took four hours, 50 minutes to get the runs. After Willie Watson and Peter May had gone for 12 each, Denis Compton stayed with Hutton in an unfinished third wicket stand which put on 77.

The West Indies won both the previous tests in the series of five.

Wednesday's scores: Victoria High 7, Esquimalt 1; Oak Bay 0, Mount View 1.

Victoria High School opened up a three-point lead in the inter-high school senior boys' soccer league yesterday, drubbing Esquimalt 7-1, at the Fernwood grounds.

In the other game played yesterday, Mount View scored its first goal and its first victory in four starts by blanking Oak Bay, 1-0, at Mount View to move into a second-place tie with its opponent.

Victoria High moved close to clinching a berth in the playoff for the Colonist Cup while the other spot is wide open. The Bays hold a game in hand over Mount View, which started out slow but has been improving every game.

Noel Boston paced the defending champions with three goals, two of them coming in the second half. Harry Nicholson scored twice and Bill Abbott and Chummy Crabbe added singletons.

George McCreadie averted a blanking, scoring in the last few seconds of play.

At Mount View, a goal by Keith Hunter from a goal-mouth scramble late in the first half proved the only score of the day but the winners were forced to hold out Oak Bay for most of the second half.

City Hockey Team Forced To Default

Victoria juveniles have defaulted the Vancouver Island juvenile hockey championship to Nanaimo because they can't ice a team.

Nanaimo will represent the Island in the Coast playdowns against the Mainland winner.

McMorrans Juveniles Lower Island Champs

McMorrans captured the lower Vancouver Island Juvenile boys' basketball championship at Victoria High School gymnasium last night as they defeated St. Louis College, 53-31, in the second game of their two-game, total-point series.

The result gave McMorrans who earned a six-point bulge in the opening game at Sooke last week, an eight-point margin in the series.

Bill Oldham, who dropped in 25 points, set the scoring pace for the winners while Tom Flynn and Ed Longpre carried the scoring load for the Collegians, potting 18 and 17 points, respectively.

EAGLETTES LEAD

In the opening game of the three-game card, Eaglettes forged into a 13-point lead over Saanichton as they downed their opponents, 36-23, in the first game of their two-game set.

Although dropping a 35-31 decision to St. Louis College in the second game of their series for the Victoria bantam boys' championship, Eagles captured the crown by seven points. They had earned an 11-point edge in the opening contest.

Line-ups follow:

McMorran's—Oldham 25, Harris 6, Large, Saggers 11, Parker 3, Mills 2, Poulfrey 3. Total—53.

Heaneys Meet Victoria West

The Victoria and District Football Association hopes to resume a full schedule of matches this week end with one game slated Saturday and two more on Sunday.

Victoria West, four points behind league-leading Esquimalt, will meet Heaneys at Lower Beacon Hill pitch Saturday afternoon. On Sunday, Canadian Scottish and Civil Service will be out to break their third-place deadlock at Lower Beacon Hill and Esquimalt tangles with last-place Wood Motors at Heywood Avenue Park.

All games start at 2.15 p.m.

Baseball Gets Good Support At Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton will have a roofed grandstand for baseball games this season, first since fire destroyed the old one in 1949.

A contract to build a $141,911 roofed grandstand seating 2,000 fans at Renfrew Park, home of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western International League, was awarded by city council Monday night. It will raise park seating capacity to 6,153 fans. It is expected to be completed in July.

Despite the handicap of having only bleacher seats last year, Eskimos led the WIL with a paid attendance of 93,825 fans.

Totems To Play At Mount View

Victoria High Totems will be out to wind up their inter-high school senior boys' basketball league schedule with an unblemished record when they clash with last-place Mount View this afternoon at Mount View gym.

Totems, who clinched the championship by defeating Esquimalt last week end, have won five games while Mount View has scored one victory in five starts. Esquimalt hosts Oak Bay High in the final league game tomorrow night at 8.45 p.m.

Help for Lyndhursts

Saxton Punches Out Win Over Ex-Welter Champion

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Johnny Saxton of New York proved himself a genuine welterweight title threat Wednesday when he punched out a one-sided decision over third-ranked Johnny Bratton of Chicago in a nationally televised 10-rounder at the Arena.

The entire 10th round was fought under a shower of newspapers and paper cups thrown into the ring by spectators in the crowd of 6,838 who vented their feelings over Bratton's dismal showing.

Pennsylvania Athletic Commissioner George Jones, who was at ring side, announced that he was holding up Bratton's purse of approximately $10,000, including TV money. He said that the former welterweight champion would be given a hearing here tomorrow morning.

BRATTON DEJECTED

In his dressing room, a dejected Bratton claimed he "hurt my hands" in the third round, when he made his best efforts.

"I feel like retiring because I have passed my heyday, and I only like to fight when I'm the boss," Bratton said.

"I am talking to my manager and he might convince me that with proper rest I might continue," he added.

A majority of the fans had begun booing and stamping their feet as early as the fourth round as the 26-year-old Bratton was unable to cope with a pressing two-fisted attack which Saxton used as a pattern for victory.

Referee Joe Sweeney and Judges Zack Clayton and Pete Tomasco each turned in cards of 9-1 in favor of the 23-year-old Saxton, under Pennsylvania's round system of scoring. This agreed with the United Press ballot.

Fifth-ranking Saxton, scaling 148½ to Bratton's 150, fashioned his victory from strategy which saw him move in on his opponent head-to-head and punch away with a left hook to the head and then shift both hands to the stomach.

Broad-Jump Record Set By N.Z. Star

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) — Yvette Williams of New Zealand has bettered the world broad jump record of Fanny Blankers-Koen of The Netherlands with a leap of 20 feet, 7¼ inches at Gisborne.

Mrs. Blankers-Koen jumped 20 feet, six inches at Leiden in 1943.

Yvette's performance was the climax of a seven-year career which has given her the Australian, New Zealand and Olympic broad jump records. She also holds the New Zealand shot put and discus records.

League Crown Again Won By Esquimalt

NOW THEY STAND

Oak Bay	6	4	2	0	150	132	8
Mount View	5	2	3	0	122	128	4
Victoria High	5	0	5	0	71	143	0

Wednesday's result: Esquimalt 27, Oak Bay 20.

Next game: Monday, Victoria High vs. Mount View.

Esquimalt High School won its second straight inter-high school senior girls' basketball league championship at Esquimalt gym yesterday by downing Oak Bay, 27-20, in its final game of the schedule.

It was Esquimalt's fifth victory in six games and moved it two points ahead of Oak Bay, which clinched second place. Victoria High meets Mount View in the final league game Monday afternoon.

Bev Ross and Pat Lisle combined to score all of Esquimalt's points, Miss Ross hooping 17, Miss Lisle, 10. The teams were deadlocked at 4-4 at the end of the first period and Oak Bay held a 12-10 edge at the half. The winners opened up in the final quarter, outscoring their opponents by seven points.

Lineups follow:

Esquimalt—Bev Ross 17, Pat Lisle 10, Noreen Simonson, Pat Hardy, Yvonne Leonie, Francis Maxwood, Ginny MacDonald, Moira Hunter, Dee Nelson, Reimer Arnason, Berna Rogers. Total—27.

Oak Bay—Crystal Jones 9, Sue Burbell 2, Claudia Oelling 1, M. Dollin 3, Jennifer Jones 5, Pat Jones, Marilyn Cockburn, Jon Corbett, Donna Burridge, Sandra Davis 2, Hilarie Weil. Total—20.

Canadian Puck Team Receives Player Aid

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Reinforcements arrived Wednesday for the Canadian team entered in the world hockey championships beginning here Friday.

Four players, a goalie, two forwards and a defenseman, reached the Swedish capital in the midst of a newspaper controversy over the relative merits of Russian and Canadian hockey styles.

Sports writers have picked the Russians, entered in the world championships for the first time, to edge out the Canadians. They prefer what they describe as the "collective" game the Russians play, over the Canadian style which emphasizes shooting and body-checking as much as passing.

The Swedish writers, who have criticized the calibre of player on the Canadian team—Toronto Lyndhursts — had a grudging nod of approval today for one of the newcomers.

SHILL PRAISED

One newspaper described Bill Shill, 37-year-old forward who is a regular member of the Toronto team but couldn't leave Canada with the rest of the team, as "perhaps the best ice hockey player who ever visited Europe."

Other newcomers are Don Lockhart, 23, goalie for Niagara Falls Cataracts of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, Eric Unger, 25, Niagara Falls centre, and Tom Jamieson, 29, defenseman with Owen Sound Mercurys of the Ontario Senior League.

Unger slipped while stepping from the plane on arrival here but his injured ankle is expected to be all right by the time the Canadians meet Switzerland Saturday in their opening game of the tourney. Most of the other teams start Friday.

MINOR INJURIES

Four other members of the Canadian team are nursing minor injuries a possible indication that the "rough-house" play attributed by sports writers to the Canadians isn't exclusive.

Bob Kennedy, Norm Gray and Tom Campbell were bruised about the legs with sticks and Harold Fiskari suffered a black eye in the Canadian 8-1 exhibition victory over the Swedish B team Tuesday night. All will be in shape for the tournament, however.

Don Preston, secretary of the Canadian team, says the players are learning the European game fast and will give "a good account" of themselves in the tournament.

Victoria To Host Norwests In Rugby Match Saturday

Rapidly rounding into shape for the March 9th battle against the touring New Zealand All-Blacks, Victoria Crimson Tide will clash with Vancouver Norwests in a McKechnie Cup rugby match at Macdonald Park Saturday at 2.30 p.m.

The game will have no bearing on the final result as Vancouver Reps won three straight games in the round-robin series to clinch the Cup earlier this month. However, Victoria will use the match as a test for its pending game against the famed All-Blacks here.

NAME LINEUP TONIGHT

Victoria has been holding two workouts a week in an effort to make up for time lost when weather conditions forced postponement of rugby action in the city for several weeks. Dick Ellis, who is co-coach of the squad with John Poole, said yesterday that Saturday's line-up will be released after a practice tonight.

Two Division II matches are also scheduled Saturday. Shawnigan Lake Boys' School meets Oak Bay Wanderers on the lower pitch at Macdonald Park and College I plays College II at the Victoria College grounds.

University School will host St. George's School of Vancouver in an inter-city match and league officials said yesterday that several midget division games may be scheduled.

Bolton Wanderers, 'Spurs Gain Cup Quarter-Finals

Bolton Wanderers, runners-up in the English Football Association Cup play last season, and London's glamour club, Tottenham Hotspur, both advanced to the quarter-finals of this year's competition Wednesday by scoring victories in fifth-round replays.

Bolton edged past Portsmouth, 2-1, and will now meet Sheffield Wednesday in a quarter-final match on March 13. Tottenham blanked Hull City to gain a berth in the round of 16 and will meet West Bromwich Albion, Division I leader.

Four matches were played in Division I Wednesday with West Bromwich extending its lead over Wolverhampton Wanderers to two points by playing to a 1-1 draw with Middlesbrough.

Everton took over first place in Division II by defeating Brentford, 6-1, and Port Vale moved seven points ahead of Gateshead in Division III (Northern) by blanking York City, 1-0.

Wednesday's results follow:

FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION CUP

Aussie Stars Set Records In Swim Meet

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Three British Empire Games records were bettered at the Australian swimming championships here Tuesday.

Eighteen-year-old Jon Hendricks broke the world record for the long pool, 110 yards, swimming it in 56.2 seconds, bettering Canadian Bob Pirie's record by 3.4 seconds.

Fifteen-year-old Gary Chapman swam the 440 yards free style in four minutes 39.2 seconds, breaking Australian Garrick Agnew's record by 10.4 seconds.

Sixteen-year-old Diane Knight swam the 110 yards women's back-stroke in one minute 18.2 seconds, eclipsing the record of Australian Judy Davies and New Zealander Joan Stewarts by .2 second.

BOB FELLER
. . . still active

Major Leagues' Pre-War Stars Disappearing from Active Ranks

BY STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UP) — The old gang is breaking up fast.

Only 17 pre-Pearl Harbor major leaguers still survive with Bob Feller of the Indians (up in 1936) and Hustling Enos Slaughter of the Cardinals (1938) heading the list.

You can give or take a few, depending on your definition of a major leaguer, but the total of 17 just about covers the vanishing breed with steady employment alongside the greats before the Second World War.

WILLIAMS STILL TOPS

Of the old gang, which provided the backbone of the majors in the first few post-war seasons, only a few like Ted Williams of the Red Sox (1939) figure to top the "kids" who came along during or since the war.

Among the top hands who earned their spurs before Pearl Harbor and still can turn in a good day's work on the playing field are Eddie Joost of the Athletics (1939), Pee Wee Reese of the Dodgers and Sid Hudson of the Red Sox (1940) and some of the survivors of the 1941 rookie class including Phil Rizzuto of the Yankees, Mickey Vernon of the Senators, Ken Raffensberger of the Redlegs and Pete Suder of the A's.

NEARING END

Some of the old gang are nearing the end of the trail. Walker Cooper, who came up to the Cards as a lean and hungry catcher in 1940, caught on with Pittsburgh. Joe Dobson, up with Cleveland in 1940, got a new lease from the Red Sox this spring. Hal Newhouser (Detroit '40), is working on a trial with the Indians.

Bob Kennedy of Cleveland, Clyde McCullough of the Cubs, Pat Mullin of Detroit and Sibi Sisti of the Braves are other pre-war regulars hanging on for another round.

That destiny date of December 7, 1941, might not seem so far removed to baseball fans among the older veterans of Second World War but its a fact that Stan Musial played just 12 games as a late season phenom before Pearl Harbor, Virgil Trucks pitched only two innings for the Tigers and Jim Hagen came up to the Indians for a 16-game "look see."

Veterans like Eddie Lopat, Allie Reynolds and Preacher Roe still were beating around the bush leagues, hoping for a break in the big time.

But there's still some life in the old guard and the American League batting crown might well develop into a duel between two of them—Williams and Vernon.

Williams, who took out time for two wars since he blazed into the league, has won the title four times. Vernon, the defending champ, has done it twice.

Neither of them is ready to fade away.

Light-weight champion Jimmy Carter and challenger Paddy DeMarco have signed for a 15-round title fight at Madison Square Garden in New York on March 5.

Sherman Gets Coaching Job With Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Al Lefty Sherman, former backfield coach with New York Giants of the National Football League, has signed a one-year contract to coach Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, club president Ralph Misener announced Tuesday night at a press conference.

The 32-year-old Sherman takes over from George Trafton, who was released earlier this year, with one year remaining on a three-year contract.

Sherman was quarterback with Philadelphia Eagles, under coach Earl Greasy Neale, from 1943 to 1947. In 1948 he was head coach of the Eagle's farm team in the American Association League. Patterson Panthers of New Jersey. From 1949 to 1953 Sherman was backfield coach of the Giants, under head coach Steve Owen, and considered one of the top T-formation experts in the U.S.

ALL BLACKS DEFEATED

BORDEAUX, France (AP)—An all-star French rugby team today beat the New Zealand All Blacks team 11-8.

Painter Gains On Fleming In Medal Golf

Vic Painter of the Royal Colwood Golf Club fired a 73 Sunday at Gorge Vale in the second round of the monthly medal competition to reduce Bob Fleming's lead to only two strokes.

The youthful Gorge Vale shotmaker, who was selected to a Canadian team which will compete in a British Commonwealth tournament this summer, checked in with a 75. Fleming leads Painter by two strokes and Joe Briggs of Gorge Vale by three strokes. Bob Morrison of Uplands fired a 75 Sunday.

Not Enough Calls, Says VON Director

Nothing is too much trouble for the Victorian Order of Nurses that is one point the local branch is stressing during VON Week, which began 5th day and will continue all the week.

"I wish people would phone us more often," is the complaint of Miss Marjorie Baird, director of the Victoria branch of the organization.

"That is one reason for VON week, to try to inform the public more fully of the services we have to offer," she added. "With the high cost of hospital care, we feel our organization could be used to a greater extent if the public understood it better."

During this week nurses and members of the association will be addressing PTAs, service clubs and other meetings on the work done by the VON.

Since it began work in Victoria 43 years ago, 14 years after the inception of the order, the local branch has greatly extended its scope. Today there are eight registered nurses working for VON in the city, and last year they made 28,[illegible]6 calls.

CHIEF WORK

The care of the sick in their own homes is the chief function of the association, said Miss Baird. Approximately one third of the calls made in 1953 were to persons over 70 years old.

While the charge per call is set at $2, lack of funds does not mean lack of attention from the VON, said Miss Baird. Persons in difficult financial straits receive treatment free, while part payment is acceptable from those with some money.

She also pointed out that pre-natal and post-natal attentions free. Care of mothers and babies accounts for many of the 10 to 12 calls averaged by a nurse each day.

Despite fees and grants from the city and the Community Chest, "we usually end up in the hole," said Miss Baird. She hopes for a grant increase in [illegible] salaries and the upkeep of our [illegible] account for [illegible] of our income, she added.

HOME ADVICE

Almost all Miss Baird's staff have lectures for post graduate [illegible] public health. "Prevention is an important part of our work," said the director. When a nurse visits a home she keeps an eye open for bad living habits and in some instances instructs families on better meals.

The service can be summoned 24 hours daily, although calls are only made at night in case of emergency, said Miss Baird. Several patients of the list have been receiving VON nursing care a period of years, and the director recalls one crippled woman who required 30 minutes of attention each call.

A smart two-piece navy blue uniform with a white collar is the VON dress. It is attractive, says Miss Baird, who thinks it may be one of the reasons she is constantly losing staff because of marriage. But the call of nursing is strong, and three of the present staff are married women.

When sickness hits the home and skilled nursing is required, nothing makes Miss Baird happier than a call for the VON.

Tourist Body Stressing Island Work

Co-operation in developing the tourist industry will be the theme of the annual meeting of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau at noon, March 3, in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

Annual reports of the bureau's activities will be submitted and officers elected.

As a gesture of co-operation between Island centres, the bureau has invited members of all Chambers of Commerce on Vancouver Island and all Island municipal council members.

It will be an Island co-operation meeting, George I. Warren, publicity bureau commissioner, said yesterday.

Guest speakers will be F. H. Elphicke, of Vancouver, president of the Vancouver Tourist Association; H. J. W. Evans of Nanaimo, president of the Upper Vancouver Island Tourist Bureau; and E. G. Rowebottom, deputy minister of trade and industry.

Ladysmith Chamber of Commerce president Malcolm Mac Kenzie has urged that at least a carload of members attend the meeting.

Tired? Tense?

HOW MUCH FREEDOM?

Wilfred Wood arose and asked how much freedom an editor or reporter could expect when something he had written have been believed to be used to personal gain.

This was a reference to [illegible] Matthews, who was [illegible] for a rival Winnipeg paper, "The Westerner."

The press should exercise more self restraint in reporting [illegible] said the [illegible] Mr. Anderson. [illegible] of exposures in the past.

[illegible] "Are we [illegible] people?"

[illegible] because they are the present [illegible] board," said Mr. Bishop. "But remember we have a right as electors."

They were appointed "about as [illegible] as anyone man.

"We make the right to elect a city council which in turn appoints the board members," said Mr. Bishop. "You are to blame. It comes from a long path and therefore is municipal politics in Victoria."

The discussion was sponsored by the Lower Island Co-Operative Commonwealth Youth Movement, a CCF association for younger people. Chairman of the meeting was Frank Snowsell.

LET MR. ANDERSON SUPPORT

Let Mr. Anderson support the action of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in censorship of the evidence of the firing of Mr. Marshall, asked L. Pasmore.

SUPPORTS CHAMBER

Quite frankly and personally I agree with the recommendation of the Junior Chamber in supporting the Library Board and on the evidence we found we are of the opinion that Marshall should not be reinstated on the library staff," was his reply.

A woman member of the audience stated that some library board members have never read a book in their lives. Mr. Wright said they to do take to the people?

"[illegible] because they are the present library board," said Mr. Bishop. "But remember we have a right as electors."

Sommers Approves Park Swap

[illegible] Park Board [illegible] recommended the park board to open the area as a park.

It is something we [illegible] needed and [illegible] said Mr. Warren said.

G. S. Dyer, president of the Saanich Indian River Chamber of Commerce, said he had not been informed of the park, which he allowed to fish in Sparks and Grass Lakes, included in the park area, but he had been told they were both overfished with fish.

The exchange of land has been negotiated some time ago by Mr. Bernard and Herson. A. Smith, owner-manager of the Oak Bay Lumber Company, was turned down by the government because [illegible] ever.

Daily Colonist columnist C. F. Mortimore raised the question of the exchange and the government's failure to carry [illegible] recently saying the public should be given access to the two lakes.

Subsequent appeals from various groups resulted in a review of the situation by Mr. Sommers.

The minister pointed out in his announcement yesterday that physical assets offered by Mr. Bernard are about equal to the Crown timber he is receiving in exchange, but the public will also gain an invaluable recreational asset.

Conservationists held that if the deal had not gone through the area would have been ruined for all time as the 1,500-acre park was of little value without the lakes.

Thief Takes Chocolates

A thief with a sweet tooth took a large quantity of chocolate bars when he entered Jean Tracey Chocolate Shop, 916 Douglas Street, last night.

City police reported entry was apparently made through a rear door by a key or by use of cellophane.

A Ladies' Auxiliary to James Bay Eagles Cubs and Scouts will be formed Thursday, February 25 in James Bay. All interested mothers are asked to attend.

Gas Leaks Threat In Wake of Shift

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (U.P.) Gas leaking from cracked mains presented the greatest menace to uneasy residents of this anthracite mining community Wednesday as they returned to their homes fearful of a recurrence of earth shifts over the coal mines which have occurred twice this week.

Emergency crews worked round the clock to find the gas main ruptures and repair them. Last night, nearly 24 hours after the second earth shift routed more than 100 persons from their beds in their night clothes, many breaks still were not located.

Electric company crews also located the affected area, a section four to six blocks square, and relieved tension in power lines made taut by the shifting of the earth.

Two women were affected by the leaking gas, which also forced eight families to leave an eight-unit apartment building.

Huge Order For Canadair

Canadair Ltd., a fully owned subsidiary of the U.S. firm General Dynamics, has received a $18,000,000 order from the federal government for 50 Bristol Britannia aircraft.

The Britannia, a commercial plane with 300-passenger capacity, will be redesigned as an RCAF reconnaissance bomber to guard Canadian shores. Twice the size of the North Star, the Britannia will be the biggest ever manufactured in Canada.

Where'd they all go? Even without free-handed little girls like this, more families ran out of Kellogg's Corn Flakes this morning than any other cereal. This is happening all the time. That's because Kellogg's Corn Flakes just naturally taste better to more people than any other cereal. Always have. Still do. No wonder so many women pick up a spare package of Kellogg's Corn Flakes every time they buy any cereal of any kind.

A SHERLOCK HOLMES STORY
Adventure of the Dancing Men

Chapter I

Holmes had been seated for some hours in silence with his long, thin back curved over a chemical vessel in which he was brewing a particularly malodorous product. His head was sunk upon his breast and he looked_ from my point of view like a strange bird with dull_ black plumage and a black top_ knot.

"So, Watson," said he, "you do not propose to make an_ South African_ securities."

I gave a start of astonishment, then asked: "How on earth do you know that?"

He wheeled round upon his_ stool with a gleam of amusement in his deepset eyes.

"Now, Watson, confess yourself_ utterly_ taken aback," said he.

"I am."

"I_ take_ liberties_ you will see that it is all so absurdly simple."

"I am sure that I will say_ nothing_ of the kind."

HOLMES LECTURES

"You see, my dear Watson," he began to lecture with the air of a professor addressing his class, "it is not really difficult to construct a series of inferences, each dependent upon its predecessor and each simple in itself.

"If, after doing so, one simply knocks out all the central inferences and presents one's audience with the starting-point and the conclusion, one may produce a startling, though possibly meretricious, effect. Now it was not really difficult by an inspection of the groove between your left forefinger and thumb, to feel sure that you did not propose to invest your small capital in the gold fields."

"I see no connection."

"Very likely not; but I can quickly show you a close connection. Here are the missing links of the very simple chain: 1. You had chalk between your left finger and thumb when you returned from the club last night. 2. You put the chalk there when you play billiards, to steady the cue. 3. You never play billiards except with Thurston. 4. You told me, four weeks ago, that Thurston had an option on some South African property which would expire in a month, and which he desired you to share with him. 5. Your check book is locked in my drawer, and you have not asked for the key. 6. You do not propose to invest your money in this manner."

"How absurdly simple!" I cried.

"Quite so," said he, a little nettled. "Every problem becomes very childish when once it is explained to you. Here is an unexplained one. See what you can make of it, Sherlock Watson." He tossed a sheet of paper upon the table and turned once more to his chemical analysis.

I looked with amazement at the absurd hieroglyphics upon the paper.

"Why, Holmes, it is a child's drawing," I cried.

"Oh, that's your_ idea!"

"What else should it be?"

WAS TO FOLLOW

"That is what Mr. Hilton Cubitt of Riding Thorpe Manor, Norfolk, is very anxious to know. This athletic gentleman came by the first post, and he was to follow by the next train. There's a ring at the bell, Watson. I should not be_ very_ surprised if this were he."

A heavy step was heard upon the stairs and an instant later there entered a tall, ruddy, clean-shaven gentleman, whose clear eyes and florid cheeks told of a life led far from the fogs of Baker Street.

Having shaken hands with each of us, he was about to sit down, when his eyes rested upon the paper with the curious markings which I had just examined and left upon the table.

"Well, Mr. Holmes, what do you make of these?" he cried. "They told me you were fond of queer mysteries, and I don't think you can find a queerer one than that. I sent the paper on ahead, so that you might have time to study it before I came."

"It is certainly rather a curious production," said Holmes. "At first sight it would appear to be some childish prank. It consists of a number of absurd little figures dancing across the paper upon which they are drawn. Why should you attribute any importance to so grotesque an object?"

"I never should, Mr. Holmes. But my wife does. It is frightening her to death. She says nothing, but I can see terror in her eyes. That's why I want to sift the matter to the bottom."

Holmes held up the paper so that the sunlight shone full upon it. It was a page torn from a notebook. The markings were in pencil, and ran in this way:

Holmes examined it for some time. And then, folding it carefully up, he placed it in his pocket-book.

UNUSUAL CASE

"This promises to be a most interesting and unusual case," said he. "You gave me a few particulars in your letter, Mr. Cubbit, but I should be very much obliged if you would kindly go over it all again for the benefit of my friend, Dr. Watson."

"I'm not much of a story-teller," said our visitor, nervously clasping and unclasping his great, strong hands. "But I'll begin at the time of my marriage last year. I came up to London for the Jubilee and lodged at a boarding house in Russell Square.

"There was an American lady there—Patrick was the name—Elsie Patrick. Before my month was up I was as much in love as a man could be. We were quietly married at a registry office, and returned to Norfolk a wedded couple. You'll think it very mad, Mr. Holmes, that a man of a good old family should marry a wife in this fashion, knowing nothing of her past or of her people; but if you saw her and knew her, it would help you to understand.

"She was very straight about it. Elsie I can't say that she did not give me every chance of getting out of it if I wished to do so. She said: 'If you take me, Hilton, you will take a [illegible]

Disputed Factory Would Employ 75

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

There will be steady work for about 75 persons if the Van Isle Molding and Mill Works is permitted to build its proposed $100,000 factory near Thetis Cove.

This information was given yesterday to the industrial group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce by Lloyd Mi[illegible] legal adviser to the company which bought property for $15,000 upon $1,000 on clearing it and was then turned down in its application to have the property rezoned from rural to industrial.

Mr. McKenzie said that although the View Royal zoning board of appeal had turned down the application last December his clients were considering asking them to reopen the case in light of a subsequent offer by the mill company to seek rezoning of only about four or five acres and to offer the rest of the property to the View Royal community for park or other use.

The industrial group, after hearing a number of views, decided to strike a committee which would be empowered to meet the View Royal Community Association in the hope of being able to achieve a settlement.

Gordon Roper, chairman of the group, opened the discussion by reading letters from Mr. McKenzie and from the View Royal Community Association.

The association letter said that it was unanimous opinion of its members the zoning appeal board was correct in refusing the application.

FURTHER LOSS

It said that already the area had to put up with industrial inconveniences and that further industrialization would further depreciate property in the area.

The case for the Van Isle company was then put by Mr. McKenzie, who was accompanied by Peter Brotherston, co-owner of the company.

Mr. McKenzie described how Mr. Brotherston had begun a one-man molding business near Elk Lake 13 years ago, and had built it up until it employed 20 men.

Last fall, he continued, his business had been turned into a company with a well-known milling man, Ellis V. Keith, as an equal shareholder with Mr. Brotherston.

As a result of this move the market for the Brotherston products had increased sharply.

Because everything had to be trucked to and from Elk Lake, the capacity of the plant was limited and it was decided a property adjacent to rail trackage was needed.

The Thetis site had been selected carefully, and as it was adjacent to existing industrial property no zoning difficulties had been anticipated.

COMPLETE SURPRISE

Indeed it was hoped, said Mr. McKenzie, that building would start [illegible] Christmas. Rejection of the zoning application had been a complete surprise.

Mr. McKenzie explained that the chain objections came from residents on the other side of Plumper Bay, yet between the homes of the objectors and the proposed new mill was already a factory, a historical museum, a disused [illegible], a cemetery and [illegible] oil installations.

"Aesthetically these may not be the best neighbors," went on Mr. McKenzie. "They are noisy and exude smoke, but Mr. Brotherston's proposed mill will be practically noiseless, and smokeless (electric power) and being only one story high would be invisible to nearly all the complainants."

CALLED ILLOGICAL

In Mr. McKenzie's view the objections were totally illogical and the ground was useless for anything but industry.

"The matter is more than just a personal matter for the View Royal people," he went on, "it means a considerable lot to the community at large if the firm is able by making this change to raise its number of employees from 20 to 75."

At thhe same time, Mr. McKenzie was doubtful as to the success of the new application as all five members of the zoning appeal board were registered property owners of the View Royal area.

J. L. Shields, who declared himself to be a resident of the district, said he was one of a minority which did not oppose the rezoning, but he doubted if even the latest move to give over part of the area as park land would change the views of the majority of View Royal residents.

"They just won't go for it," he said.

In a subsequent discussion, Mr. Roper said that the area had been used industrially for about 50 years and that an emotional attitude to the application was unreasonable. He hoped it might be possible to find an amicable solution, and he thought that a meeting of his group's committee with the View Royal Community Association might be helpful.

Kitsilano Band To Play Twice

—AROUND TOWN—

The Kitsilano Boys' Band will present two concerts in Victoria this week.

Under the direction of Arthur W. Delamont, the band will be heard at S. J. Willis Junior High School at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

When the band appeared here last year, 2,000 persons packed into the high school auditorium on two nights to hear it.

Tickets are on sale now at the Victoria Music Centre and Fletcher's or can be obtained from any student of S. J. Willis Junior High.

Proceeds of both concerts will go to the music department of the school, to be used for the purchase of new instruments and other needed supplies.

Tight-Fisted Policy, Says Owner

Pharmacists Force Closing Of Terry's Drug Section

The drug dispensary at Terry's has been forced to close down because of what its owner regards as a tight-fisted closed shop policy of the Pharmaceutical Association of B.C.

Elmer D. McEwen, president and managing director of Terry's, bought the drug store, coffee shop and dining room business of the company early last year.

He is not a druggist, but has employed a registered pharmacist to manage the drug department.

"I thought I'd be able to carry on with the business as long as I employed a registered pharmacist," he said yesterday.

But later last year Mr. McEwen was informed by the Pharmaceutical Association that a non-druggist cannot own a drug store despite the fact that it is managed by a registered pharmacist.

This clause was written into the act by an amendment passed by the provincial legislature some four years ago.

Mr. McEwen said he was ordered to close his dispensary this month and return his operating license to the association.

STUCK WITH STOCK

In an attempt to comply with the order he tried to return the items in his dispensary, only to find that drug wholesale firms from which they had been purchased under what he said was a money-back arrangement in some cases wouldn't accept them and sent them back.

"Their own act says it's illegal for me to keep them on the premises because it could be construed that I'm keeping them for sale," he said. "As far as I can see, the only thing I can do is to take them out and bury them."

"I feel anyone should be able to own a drug store, provided a licensed pharmacist is in charge of the dispensary," declared Mr. McEwen. "It is contrary to our democratic way of life otherwise."

Officials of the Pharmaceutical Association defended the act, however.

"SOLE PURPOSE"

A. W. Scott, association president, said the act had been amended some four years ago for the sole purpose of protecting the public from unscrupulous individuals not bound by the ethics of the pharmaceutical profession.

Prior to the amendment, he said, it was necessary only for a majority of the directors of a drug store company to be pharmacists. The amendment, he continued, provided that a majority of the directors and a majority of the stock be held by pharmacists.

Mr. Scott said the profession regarded itself as the guardian of public health. A non-druggist owner would tell his pharmacist manager what he could buy and use in his drug store, he said.

In cases where the prime object was making money, quality with no regard to public health, he said, this would mean inferior and cheaper materials would be used in preparation of prescriptions.

It is impossible to cut corners through use of inferior materials in pharmacy without endangering public health, he said.

Pharmacists, whose code of ethics puts the public health factor first, guarantee a high standard of protection as drug store owners, he said.

A. F. McDuffee, association inspector, said the amendment involving ownership of drug stores was intended to make the act "more workable."

There was no intention of creating a closed shop in the pharmaceutical association, he said.

Mr. Scott said there was nothing to prevent a non-druggist from owning 19 per cent of a drug store concern.

Mr. McEwen estimated that more than $4,500 of stock is involved in his dispensary closure, but he added that the closure order would mean a loss of business and shoot his over-all loss up to some $10,000.

Terry's will continue to sell patent medicines prepared by drug manufacturing concerns, despite the fact that there will be no dispensary to fill doctors' prescriptions.

Mr. McEwen said he had never had any trouble with the association.

"The fact that I'm not a pharmacist is the only excuse they've got," he said.

LICENSE EXPIRING

Mr. McEwen was notified by a letter on February 19 from F. H. Fullerton, manager of the association, that his license, held by J. W. MacArthur, registered pharmacist and manager of Terry's dispensary, would expire February 28.

The letter said that since Terry's had been established prior to the ownership amendment to the Pharmacy Act, the requirement that a majority of the common stock must be held by druggists was not necessary.

"However, to take advantage of this situation," the letter said, "it would be necessary for you to have your name registered at the provincial court house or with the registrar of companies officially establishing your connection with this business and then set up a joint stock company which could have two or more pharmacists on the directorate, so the majority of such persons on the directorate were pharmaceutical chemists, one of whom was manager of the store.

"If you should desire to form a new company this would have to comply with all the requirements of the Pharmacy Act as of today, which would mean that a majority of common stock in such company must be held by pharmaceutical chemists as well as the majority of directors of such company being pharmaceutical chemists," the letter said.

WOULD TELL RCMP

"Unless this situation can be put in order immediately," the letter went on to explain, "this association cannot issue another license, and as of March 1 we will be compelled to inform the RCMP that narcotics are being held in Terry's . . . illegally."

Mr. McEwen said also that the Pharmacy Act as it now stands could work a hardship on the widow of a druggist who must sell her husband's store within a specified time after his death.

Mr. McDuffee explained, however, that if the company had been established prior to the amendment to the act a druggist's widow could carry on indefinitely in control with a qualified druggist managing the business. If the company was established following passage of the amendment, he said, a druggist's widow would have three years in which to dispose of her husband's business.

A Victoria viewer has written to a Vancouver television magazine as follows.

"At the same time we are scrimping to pay for our set, a swarm of friends, neighbors and relatives call at times to 'watch,' and repeat at very short intervals.

"They always come empty-handed but quickly become hungry or thirsty. Very often a television commercial showing a food or drink product will set off a chain reaction. This can cost me from 75 cents to $2 or more an evening."

The writer wants to know what to do about it.

Man Questioned, Released During Holdup Investigation

Police questioned one man yesterday in connection with Tuesday night's Modern Pharmacy holdup, but he was released when druggist Clyde Savage did not identify him as the thug who held the up.

No new clues have been found in connection with Monday's $4,000 holdup at the McGavin Bakery.

In both cases police have only sketchy descriptions to work on.

Police now believe it may be [illegible] that a sawed-off rifle was used in Monday's brazen daylight holdup. They are also investigating the possibility that Vancouver thugs are at work here.

The drug store robber was a chatting, boastful type and appeared to be under the influence of liquor. He used no car.

The other were sober and worked as a team.

Long winter layoffs may be a reason for the many break-in attempts made in Victoria recently. Police yesterday pointed out crime is usually prevalent in winter and at a low ebb in summer when there is little unemployment.

Elderly Woman Injured by Car

Mrs. Bertha M. Allen, 69, of 1054 Clare Street, was treated at hospital last night for abrasions after being knocked down by a car as she crossed Oak Bay Avenue at Clare about 8 p.m.

Police said the car driver was Donald M. McCullock, HMCS Nadeed.

Women Weep As Plea Made

Women wept and others applauded in city police court yesterday as 64-year-old Ann May Dobeson told Magistrate H. C. Hall she was proud to be standing here where I am to fight for justice.

"We must have justice for aged persons. There is a tragedy happening in the city every day," the Lake Hill Lake woman who claims to have been swindled in real estate transactions continued despite interruptions by the magistrate.

Mrs. Dobeson was charged with wilful damage over the amount of $20.

The charge arose out of a window breaking incident in the treasury office of the legislative buildings last Thursday.

Mrs. Dobeson readily admits throwing spikes, chisels and plumbing fixtures through the window in protest to "crooked real estate men and lawyers." She was dissatisfied with the attorney-general's department over the investigation of her case.

TO STAND TRIAL

Magistrate Hall yesterday committed her for trial in a higher court, but she had her say in front of the crowded courtroom.

She told a tale of frustration.

"My act last Thursday was in self-defense and in defense of other people who have been swindled by real estate men and lawyers in this city," the self-styled Mrs. Pankhurst asserted.

Her voice was strong and confident at this point but as she continued she sobbed and appeared choked with emotion.

One woman clapped several times and the magistrate threatened to have her removed from the court. Three women in the back of the gallery wept openly and dried their tears with handkerchiefs. A man in the gallery said "hear, hear" several times.

IN CITY JAIL

Mrs. Dobeson has been in the city jail since she was arrested last Thursday. She refused bail, preferring to remain in jail to emphasize her protest.

"I don't want to be let out on bail to be a good girl, because I am not going to be a good girl," she told the magistrate yesterday.

"You can't keep me in jail forever over a broken glass.

"I will do something again I don't know what my temper will be."

"Mr. Scott (she pointed to W. A. Scott in the gallery), he saved me from committing a crime." Mr. Scott has been a crusader against other alleged real estate swindles and has been advising Mrs. Dobeson and her daughter, Miss Lilian Overton.

WANTED TO SHOOT

"I wanted to go out and shoot people . . . lawyers and real estate men who swindled me," she sobbed.

"I lost $800 for lawyers' advice. They told me I had a good case, but people kissed that Bible and then lied.

She claims to have been swindled in a real estate deal involving a store at Langford Lake.

"I have been to five lawyers and I have been to the attorney-general's department," Mrs. Dobeson said.

"For 14 months it has been going on . . . Is there no justice? Is there no help?"

"I have lost the property I put money down on and had a revenue from. I couldn't keep payments up on a house in which I was going to retire."

NOT A DOLLAR

"My daughter threatened to leave me because I got up at night shrieking. I am almost out of my mind. I haven't got a dollar after three years of hard work.

"The result of my actions will be blamed on the authorities of this country," the frustrated woman warned the magistrate.

Before hearing Mrs. Dobeson's story the magistrate warned her that anything she said would be used as evidence.

"I wish to ask if I am entitled to the indulgence of this court, the mercy of this court, that they will understand me. I wish to give evidence in my own way, in my own words," she said.

The magistrate told her kindly that it was only a preliminary hearing.

She asked whether she would be tried under British Common Law or Statute Law.

"It is the Statute Law of the Criminal Code of Canada," the magistrate replied.

"I understand the British Common Law," Mrs. Dobeson answered.

OTHER WITNESSES

Four other witnesses were heard.

Two police constables told of the arrest at the legislative buildings.

Constable Rodney McNeill told of finding the accused in the hallway of the buildings. He said she appeared in a nervous state and had been crying.

He said she admitted breaking the window.

He told of taking a chisel from her purse. In a paper bag carried in a shopping bag she had a cold chisel, and plumbing fixtures, he said.

She told him it was more ammunition.

Constable Eric Rossiter told of finding a cold chisel and a piece of pipe on a table in the treasury office.

A treasury office clerk, Miss Maureen Jackson, 917 Kings Road, told of seeing Mrs. Dobeson outside the treasury office ready to throw an object through the window.

Peter Roberts, 743 Armstrong, an employee of Hobbs Glass Company, said replacement value of the window was $51.87.

Magistrate Hall told Mrs. Dobeson he would ask the prosecutor to speak to the attorney-general's department regarding bail and aid in securing counsel.

He suggested the Legal Aid society or the law society might help.

Commission Picks Site For Hospital

CAMPBELL RIVER: Village commissioners have set aside nine acres as a new hospital site, the Hospital Society has announced.

The site at Second Avenue and Birch Street has a clear title and was purchased from the government at a nominal fee. The land is approved for sewerage, it was reported.

The society, meanwhile, has announced that public meetings will be held to acquaint taxpayers with plans for a new institution.

Today's Business Of Legislature

Gordon Gibson (L, Lillooet) will continue his dissertation on the PGE when the legislature sits today at 2.30 p.m.

Frank Calder (CCF, Atlin) and R. O. Newton (SC, Columbia) are scheduled to follow Mr. Gibson. Next on the list, if time permits, are Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Chetwynd and J. A. Reid (SC, Salmon Arm).

Debate Set for Council

Saanich May Vote On Library Plan

Taxpayers in Saanich will have the final vote on whether the municipality withdraws from Victoria Public Library.

A proposal to withdraw will go before the municipal council Monday evening, originating from Reeve Joseph Casey.

If council endorses his proposal, final action toward withdrawal would be up to taxpayers, the reeve said, who would have to vote in a referendum.

Some individuals have supported his proposal, and also his suggestion that Saanich build its own library from monies that would have been paid the city library in the form of capital charges.

The debate Monday night is expected to draw a large audience.

Hot Cherry Sauce Good With French Pancakes

Makes 6 to 8 servings

3 eggs, beaten

[illegible] cup milk

½ cup Ready-Mix for Pancakes

½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Combine beaten eggs and milk. Add Ready Mix and grated lemon rind, stirring until smooth. Place about a teaspoonful of butter in a small frying pan and heat until the butter bubbles. Pour in enough batter to coat bottom of the pan with a thin layer. Bake until delicately browned on under side, turn and bake on other side. Roll up, serve with hot cherry sauce.

To make the cherry sauce: Heat 1 package frozen dark cherries or one can dark cherries. Mix thoroughly [illegible] cup of sugar and 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Add gradually to cherries, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

VARIATIONS:

1. Spread each pancake with tart jelly; roll up. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar.

2. Roll pancakes around sweetened fresh or frozen strawberries. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and top with sour cream.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

(a) Pass. You have every expectation of making the contract. You may even be able to make an overtrick. But if you redouble the opponents may be goaded into running out to five hearts, where your profit may be [illegible] if indeed the opponents don't have the kind of distributional freak that will permit them to make it.

(b) Redouble. The situation is different now. You still can expect to make four spades doubled. You also can expect to [illegible] five hearts or five clubs if the opponents should rescue after you redouble.

(c) Redouble. Your three hearts to the queen may not win a trick, but they will certainly make it difficult for the opponents to handle the hand at a five-heart contract if they draw trumps. You will win some spade tricks if they leave your trumps outstanding. You can expect to get a diamond ruff or two.

(d) Five diamonds. There are two dangers in the four-spade contract. East may be able to [illegible]

Where on Earth
Is The Oldest Fishing?
by TED ATWOOD

The ancient sport and industry of fishing has always had its unusual twists both in method and quarry. From the Eskimo who drops his line through a hole in the ice in the later whose bait is a wad of chewing gum and whose aim is a subway grill men have constantly devised strange lures to capture diverse prizes.

In the swamps and lakes of Texas the Bayou delta men and boys are adding yet another variation to the fishing industry. Their equipment nets and buckets. Their quarry fish water fleas! More than a century ago the Palmetto were packed with these fleas by an old Portuguese sea captain who little realized that he was paving the way for this bizarre new industry. From his voyages in the China seas he brought home buckets filled with gold fish. These he released into a little lake near Ferrara. The water from his buckets contained Chinese water fleas which multiplied rapidly and invaded the swamplands with every flood.

Recently an enterprising native got the idea that the water fleas would be excellent food for pet iguanas and dell cate eaters of fish. On this sound premise the flea fishing business was begun. Soon the swamps were invaded by armies of men and boys. Skimming the fleas from the water with fine nets they work feverishly

NEWS REVIEW

By Erith M. Smith

(From AP, CP, Reuters, UP)

For the first time a woman has been elected president of the British Columbia division, Canadian Red Cross Society. Mrs. J. N. Mawer, Vancouver, was elected to the post Wednesday at the close of the division's 34th annual meeting. She succeeds Lieut.-Col. G. P. Sturrett, Vancouver.

President Eisenhower has recommended a 3 to 4 per cent salary increase for most U.S. civilian government workers—part of a program to "improve the efficiency" of career federal employees.

* * *

Working off the coast of Italy, the British salvage ship Sea Salvor Wednesday recovered the stern part of the Comet jet airliner which crashed into the sea January 10 with loss of 35 lives. The search aims at finding out the cause of the crash.

* * *

A mob-scene welcome from thousands of hymn-singing Londoners yesterday greeted U.S. evangelist Billy Graham, who will open a revival program in the British capital Monday.

* * *

Senator Thomas Reid (L, British Columbia) has suggested that the Senate should be asked by the government to conduct some of the investigations now undertaken by royal commissions.

* * *

Again from London, Gordon McGregor, president of Trans-Canada Airlines, has announced purchase of 15 British Viscount turbo-prop airliners for the Montreal-New York run.

* * *

The external affairs department in Ottawa says Canada and Peru have signed an air transport agreement, providing for reciprocal exchange of air traffic rights over an eastern route between Montreal and Lima, and a western route between Vancouver and Lima.

U.S. Eighth Army headquarters in Seoul say two soldiers of the Belgian battalion in Korea crossed into Communist territory and surrendered last July 31, and were quoted as saying they did not want to go back to Belgium "because it is rapidly becoming a U.S. colony."

Mardi Gras Fills New Orleans Tills

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Thousands of free-wheeling tourists kept the French quarter cash registers jingling Wednesday as this lusty old city's famed Mardi Gras season roared toward its climax with fantastic parades, exclusive balls and pageantry.

The million dollar show ends at midnight next Tuesday as the tolling of bells in historic cathedrals signals the end of fun and frolic and the beginning of the 40-day Lenten season.

But the jammed-packed events of Mardi Gras Day, when feature the reign of Rex, lord of misrule, are supposed to make Lenten repentance easy.

Between now and the fantasy of Mardi Gras Day during which revelers, masked from sunup to sundown, can get by with almost anything short of murder, there will be some 16 night parades and up to 50 glittering balls.

Former Dancer in Court over 76 Animals

CHICAGO (UP)—Mrs. Irene Castle Enzinger goes to court Wednesday in a dispute over now the custody of 76 animals.

Mrs. Enzinger, a celebrated dancing star during the First World War and the early 1920s, runs an animal shelter called "Orphans of the Storm."

The animals involved in the court case were seized by her agents from the farm of Chas. Stelec Piasecki, who subsequently was convicted of mistreating them.

In a cross-claim, Piasecki charged that Mrs. Enzinger's $888 caring for them since they were seized from Piasecki, had no right to seize the $750. She said she has spent his permission to sell them for animals. He also is appealing cruelty conviction.

Winnipeg Girl Posed as Starlet

WINNIPEG (BUP)—Merle-Ann Meyers, 17, young actress with Winnipeg's Little Theatre, admitted Wednesday to red faced officials of the University of Saskatchewan that she had been disguised as a movie starlet at the university and had sparked a blood-raising campaign on the campus.

Merle-Ann was wined and dined by the university, in Saskatoon, and made addresses and radio broadcasts to student bodies when she said she was "Dawn Sommers," a budding young movie starlet.

She was flown to Saskatoon and stayed in one of the city's best hotels at the expense of the university last week end. She signed thousands of autographs as Dawn Sommers.

The truth came out today when the Manitoban, University of Manitoba student paper admitted the hoax and said two men on the paper staff and Miss Meyers had dreamed up the hoax and a fictitious name.

University of Saskatchewan officials, meanwhile, said they were completely baffled by the expert Merle-Ann, but added that 62 per cent of the student body had offered blood.

Meeting to Study Convention Plans

The Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities will meet in Nanaimo on March 6 to formulate plans for the convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities to be held in Victoria from October 20 to 22.

Elderly Pets Deserve Care, Not Putting to Sleep

ANIMAL QUESTION BOX

BY ROBERT MAGGS

Every so often, someone asks about the problem of putting pets to sleep. It is a problem to which there is no general answer since each case must be considered on its own merits. In cases where an animal is in constant pain and there is no relief for it I am all in favor of putting it to sleep as humanely as possible—as soon as possible. But the people who make me ill are the ones who want to have a pet destroyed merely because he has grown old and requires more attention than his owner feels like giving him.

The first dog I remember in my boyhood was Old Tuck. He was dad's dog, that is, he belonged to us all, but it was alongside my dad's chair that he lay down. It was Dad he waited for at night, slept outside Dad's room and his idea of heaven seemed to be to have dad sit and sort of uncon-sciously rub behind his ears. As the years passed Old Tuck took to sleeping more hours in the day, and was not as spry as he used to be. I remember a friend of my dad's saying once, "You know, Doc, it's a shame to keep a dog when he gets as old as Tuck. Why don't you put him to sleep?" My dad looked at him and said, "I'd hate to think that the people I love are planning on having me put to sleep when I grow old." Old Tuck finally went to sleep one night outside dad's bedroom door—we found him there the next morning with his head on one of Dad's shoes—and although theologians say that, just as he lacks man's reason so does he lack an "immortal soul," I like to think that when my dad died a few years ago, Old Tuck would be waiting to escort him through the Golden Gates.

An animal has very little choice in the matter of being taken into a home as a resident. Once a person brings a cat or dog into his home, he has a certain obligation to the animal. Or at least, if he doesn't feel that way about it, he is foolish to get a pet animal in the first place. The obligation we owe our pets does not end with their ability to jump around and more or less keep us amused. If the time ever comes that my Lady has to be carried outside because she can't walk down the steps under her own steam, I'll carry her down. She will be given as much love and care as her position in life deserves. She is a member of the family, and as such she will be loved until she passes on to whatever comes after this life. It will be a pretty lonesome sort of Heaven if none of my pets are there.

I received a letter from Miss P. W. in which she asks if I would bring to my readers' attention the fact that "owning a female dog brings added responsibilities, as too few people look forward to the day when their cute little pup will be grown up, and unless spayed, come into season, only too often alas to be turned into the streets where she too often meets death under the wheels of a car, or if she survives, spends a short life producing one litter after another."

I heartily agree with you, Miss P. W., on the above subject. I would like to hear from you again when you feel like voicing an opinion. You write a very nice letter—write more next time and we'll make a column out of it.

I have something really extra special for someone this week. But the someone must be extra special too. Mrs. E. A. Vincent, Quayle Road, R. R. 1, Royal Oak, Victoria, has a lovely two-year-old purebred Boston Bull female she wishes to get a home for.

The dog is not a "problem child," nor does Mrs. Vincent really want to be rid of her. The trouble is that there are three dogs now in the Vincent home and Beauty is a jealous little female who demands more than her share of the family attention. The other two dogs were there first, and to keep the peace it is best that Beauty be given to someone who can give her all thhe attention she needs. She must go to someone who does not own a dog. Drop a line to Mrs. Vincent and she will give you all the particulars—but do it now before the good lady changes her mind.

May Hurry to Lobby on Labor Laws

Unions Asked To Have Delegates Ready

All local unions in B.C. have been asked to have delegates ready to attend legislative sessions in Victoria for discussion of changes of B.C. labor legislation.

The call arose out of a joint meeting of the B.C. Trade Union Congress, the B.C. Federation of Labor and the Standard Railway Brotherhoods held this week in Vancouver. There has been no definite word of the matter in Victoria.

The meeting also asked Premier W. A. C. Bennett to table immediately proposed labor legislation so that labor delegates could study it before the legislature. Until the three groups had early in the session, B.C. Federation of Labor secretary George Home explained, received assurances from Labor Minister Lyle Wicks that the legislation would be brought in.

Bennett Urged To Quit PGE Post

Resignation of Premier W. A. C. Bennett as president of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway was called for yesterday by Gordon Gibson (Liberal, Lillooet).

The big lumberman, noted for his thunderous voice and unpolished delivery, spent two hours and 20 minutes blasting the PGE, its operation and its president, and he went through the direction, and he won't yet. Mr. Gibson, who talked right up until adjournment time yesterday, will lead off the Throne Speech debate again today.

He said the premier, who is president of the PGE and minister of finance, should "drop two of the three positions he holds, for the good of the country."

"I'll be fair and let him pick out the two he is least competent to handle," Mr. Gibson said. Later he said neither Minister of Trade and Industry Ralph Chetwynd, the premier or Einar Gunderson (who has been kept on the PGE board of directors) had enough experience to run a railroad.

Mr. Gibson directed most of his attack on the planned southern PGE extension from Squamish to North Vancouver. He said Squamish should become a rail terminus and open port also U.S. and Canadian railway barges to avoid the "bottle neck" in Vancouver freight yards" and reduce rates for lumber being shipped to the southwest United States.

He said he had tried to get information from the premier on the financial state of the PGE for 1953 but had been refused. This, he said, was "a horrible state of affairs."

* * *

B.C.'s greatest natural resource is still in good supply, Mr. Gibson told the House.

"There is more accessible timber in B.C. today than there has ever been in the history of the province," he said. "If we're not careful we'll have to hire people to cut down trees to keep them out of our cities."

Accessibility of resources was the key factor, Mr. Gibson said. To point up the value of accessibility, he told of a "lecture on economics" his father had once given him.

Pointing to a small mountain lake, the senior Gibson said, "Son, if you had that lake at the mouth of Hell, it would be worth a dollar a glass."

B.C. motorists will no longer be tempted to take their eyes off the road to catch a fleeting glimpse of a movie as they wheel past a drive-in theatre.

New regulations passed by the provincial cabinet stipulate that screen towers in the drive-ins must be placed so that no projection on the screen is visible from any highway.

Other new rules designed to prevent drive-in traffic becoming a hazard to highway traffic.

Entrances to the theatres may not lead directly off any main highway.

Towers, fences and other construction must be set back at least 300 feet from any main highway.

Off-the-highway parking space must be provided for patrons waiting to enter the theatre. This space must be equal to from 25 to 50 per cent of the capacity of the theatre.

Exits must be at least 25 feet wide, based on a minimum of eight feet of exit driveway width for each 60 cars.

Former Finance Minister Einar Gunderson has been downgraded from "Honorable" to plain "Mister."

A special cabinet order Wednesday removed the prefix "Honorable" from in front of Mr. Gunderson's name on the roll of directors of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

* * *

Mr. Gibson is one MLA who isn't satisfied to talk to an empty chair.

On two occasions yesterday he asked the Speaker to have absent cabinet ministers paged and brought back to the floor of the House so he could tell them off.

Once Mr. Gibson asked that Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers be summoned and another time he waited for Premier Bennett to answer the page's call.

The "Williston for education minister" drive is gaining more support from the opposition.

A Liberal and a CCFer each put in a good word Wednesday for Ray Williston, a Socred backbencher and a former school inspector from Fort George, who has been rumored for some time as a likely candidate for the education portfolio.

The latest boosts for Mr. Williston came from John Squire (CCF, Albernie) and Mr. Gibson.

* * *

Mr. Squire said yesterday he would oppose the proposed reduction of the 17½ per cent amusement tax if the saving went to theatre operators.

He said it was better not to reduce the tax "if the saving is not going back to the people." He said the revenue now was at least going to the public.

"The position should be made clear that the saving is going to the people," he said.

He challenged Labor Minister Lyle Wicks on his claim last session that lost working days through strikes had been cut greatly during the Social Credit regime.

Mr. Squire called injunctions "the employer's new weapon" against unions. He said the injunctions against unions usually accomplished little, but were designed merely as a costly nuisance.

Mr. Squire supported his fellow CCFer, William Moore, in a plea for extensions of northern Vancouver Island roads. He said he hoped the budget would provide funds not only for maintenance of existing roads but for new ones.

Construction Of Hospital Considered

NANAIMO—Construction of a new 150-bed acute patients' hospital and establishment of a hospital district were considered last night at the 73rd annual meeting of Nanaimo hospital.

Overcrowding and shortage of hospital beds have emphasized the necessity of a program to keep pace with Nanaimo's rapid growth.

It was felt that a building program could best be financed through establishment of a hospital district, reaching roughly from Deep Bay on the north to Cedar on the south.

Formation of such a district would probably require revision of the Hospital Society by-laws to allow for one more member.

The 150-bed acute patients' hospital is planned on the present hospital grounds and would connect with the main building.

Blaze Quelled At Work Point

Firefighters from HMC Dockyard put out a stubborn blaze in one of the old buildings at Work Point Barracks late last night.

The wooden building, now used as a store room, caught fire from a short circuit in the wiring, garrison officials said. No estimate of damage could be arrived at last night, but it is believed smoke and water would have caused more than the flames.

Firemen working in teams fought their way in and out of dense clouds of acrid white smoke to try to control the blaze.

Smoke billowed from open doors and broken windows like heavy fog rolling in from the sea. Huge white spotlights were used by the masked firemen to find their way around inside the building.

Guards discovered the blaze, and Dockyard firemen were on the job within minutes.

No one was reported injured in the fire, but firemen could work only a few minutes at a time without choking in the thick smoke.

One Injured In Collision

One person was injured in a three-car collision at Craigflower and Tillicum last night, Esquimalt police reported.

Mrs. Jane Elizabeth McNeeley, 45 Knollwood, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from minor injuries. Her condition is good.

Police said that Mrs. McNeeley was riding in the middle car which was involved in a series of rear-end collisions.

A brief case containing personal papers and a passport was stolen from a car parked on Humboldt Street last night, N. N. Galer, 3270 West 48th, Vancouver, told police.

Fire Detection Hit

B.C.'s forest fire detection services are "grossly inadequate," according to H. A. Richmond of the Victoria laboratory of the forest biology division.

He made the statement here yesterday addressing a session of the B.C. natural resources conference. (See also stories, Page 2.)

"Some 80 lookout sites are awaiting money for their development, and at least 150 more lookouts are necessary to give even a sketchy coverage of the province," said Mr. Richmond.

"Six chartered aircraft for fire detections are grossly inadequate, and B.C. has no helicopters or smoke jumpers. Many miles of access roads and trails are badly needed.

"In the past two years 7 per cent of fires have been responsible for 87 per cent of the total fire-fighting bill because it took days rather than hours to reach them," he added.

Mr. Richmond pointed out that no single phase of research activities in the forest offers a wider field for objects and methods than survey.

He said a survey in 1910 might have prevented the spread of white pine blister rust, which had become so widespread and firmly established when it was detected in 1921, "that it is doubtful whether any commercial stands of white pine will remain in the next generation."

Research into mechanical means of logging had added greatly to the prosperity of the industry, said C. B. Dunham, woods manager, Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Co., Ltd.

"The forest industry in B.C. has expanded on low cost wood. Continuing support for research in better logging methods and equipment will help maintain this expansion," Mr. Dunham said.

Sommers Accepts Sooke Park Deal

Sooke Mountain Park will be kept from the public for at least another five years.

An exchange of land that includes two attractive lakes in the park was approved by Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers yesterday.

The deal consists of swapping 3,000,000 board feet of Crown timber on the easterly portion of the park for 409 acres of timbered land, lakes and other assets owned by G. E. Bernard Cooper's Cove.

Mr. Bernard said last night the parks and recreation board of the provincial government had agreed to let him use the road into the new park for another five years to complete a contract let for logging rights.

The 5½ mile paved road is the only paved logging road in B.C. and was built by Mr. Bernard.

"They agreed to let me use the road as before for five years more, and after that, the park will still not be opened until it has been improved," Bernard said.

He said park and recreation officials feel five years is not too long a time, because it will take at least that length of time to make preparations and get the money needed to improve the park.

"But I will still have complete control of the road as before. I put it in at my own expense, and all Mr. Sommers has really done is give his blessings to the parks and recreation board," Mr. Bernard said.

He added that if anyone is really interested in going in over his road, they can, and must obtain permission from him first.

Post Filled By Nasser

Vice-Premier Taking Over; Long Believed Real Boss

CAIRO (CP)—Egypt's first president, Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib, has resigned in the apparent upshot of a struggle for power with his vice-premier, "strong man" Gamal Abdel Nasser.

An official announcement just before dawn today said Nasser is taking over as premier of Egypt and president of the Revolutionary Council, but it said nothing about the presidency of the republic.

Naguib, 53, has held all three posts since the monarchy was ended officially last June 18 and was replaced with the proclaimed republic headed by Naguib.

Nasser, a 36-year-old lieutenant-colonel, has long been regarded as the real power behind the revolutionary army group that deposed and exiled King Farouk in June, 1952.

WANTED POWERS

Major Salah Salem, national guidance minister, said Naguib sought the power to veto decisions of the ruling Revolutionary Council. He also wanted the right to appoint and dismiss cabinet ministers and the right to appoint, dismiss or transfer members of the armed forces.

The announcement said Naguib's resignation was submitted three days ago.

There had been frequent reports that Nasser was becoming the real power in the military government more important than Naguib, who has been referred to as "the reluctant dictator."

Nasser and Naguib are Egyptian heroes of the Palestine war, in which both were wounded. Nasser became secretary-general of the liberation rally which took over the government after the 1952 coup.

RUNNING NATION

For months Nasser had been doing the high administration work while Naguib has been away visiting the country, making speeches and building goodwill for the Revolutionary party.

In the negotiations with Britain over evacuation of British troops from the Suez Canal Zone, Nasser has played the leading role.

Long before the actual overthrow of King Farouk, Nasser had become a power behind the scenes.

Nasser was a member of the "Free Officers," the secret society of young army officers opposed to the established order. It was largely owing to him that Naguib was chosen and supported by the junior officers as the symbol of the army's revolt.

In May, 1953, Nasser became vice-president of the Revolutionary Council. He was also made minister of the interior.

A strapping six-footer with thick black hair flecked with grey, Nasser speaks fluent English and during the Second World War was attached to British forces in the western desert.

But this has not prevented him from using the slogan "Out with the British—Egypt for the Egyptians" and making violently anti-British speeches.

It was he who largely influenced the decision that ex-king Farouk's life should be spared when a number of army leaders wanted him shot or imprisoned.

Canada's New Stamps

A new five-cent stamp with the Queen's portrait will be issued by the post office department April 1. The stamp was engraved from a photograph supplied by Dorothy Wilding of London. Blue in color, it will replace the current design from a photograph by Yousuf Karsh of Ottawa. The other three stamps, showing Canadian wildlife, will also be issued at the same time. The 15-cent black stamp shows a gannet in flight against a night sky; the grey four-cent stamp shows a walrus; and a blue five-cent stamp shows a beaver. The walrus and beaver stamps are short-term commemorative stamps.—(CP photo.)

Censor Lacks Support

Residents of Victoria don't want censorship in any form, judging by the audience reaction to a panel discussion on the subject in the Douglas CCF Hall last night.

The panel consisted of four local men, from various walks of life who thoroughly threshed out the question: "Is modern society justified in establishing censorship?" The lively debate warmed up considerably when the audience began peppering the four speakers with questions.

Speakers were R. J. Bishop, of Victoria College; Hugh Botterell, Victoria lawyer; Frank Richards, editor of the Saanich Star and Don Anderson, vice-president of the provincial Junior Chamber of Commerce.

DISTORTION CHARGED

Messrs. Bishop, Botterell, and Richards opposed censorship. Mr. Anderson said he was against the principle but that it was "necessary."

"I feel that liberty must be limited in order to be possessed," said Mr. Anderson. He went on to blame the press for much of the trouble.

"As long as they distort and print inaccurate news there must be a censorship which I term voluntary restriction at source," he said. "As an example of distortion and inaccuracy I point to this book-burning business."

If the press imposed regulations itself, he went on, and exercised its own censorship the people would have a better opinion of it.

Not so, retorted Mr. Bishop. The problem was bound up in the general question as to whether the human mind should be left free to find its own solution or truth on any subject.

"The Nazis and Communists know how to impose total censorship but only for a short time. They train and get control of children's minds. But you dont have men. You have robots," said Mr. Bishop.

He referred to those who

Plenty of Water Likely This Year

Greater Victoria should escape its annual water famine this summer.

Municipal officials feel that new water mains and connections recently completed, or to be finished before summer heat waves, have eliminated all but a few problems.

The trouble areas that remain are in Saanich municipality. But Reeve Joseph Casey yesterday said he is satisfied that more than 90 per cent of the municipality will have good water service by the end of June.

The other 10 per cent might still be served by elderly two-inch water mains that cannot give sufficient pressure. The small lines are being replaced by larger ones as part of a replacement policy that allots $25,000 each year for the work. This policy is continuing.

Esquimalt, which is supplied by the city water works system, also expects to be free of drought troubles. No restrictions were necessary last summer, an official said.

NEW CONNECTION

Oak Bay's engineer, A. S. G. Musgrave, said he would be "disappointed" if there are restrictions this summer, saying that the connection earlier this week to a new 20-inch main should help adequately supply all areas.

Brentwood water district is contemplating an expansion of its storage facilities in preparation for possible expansion of its lines to an area now served by the B.C. Eelctric power plant.

Tenders closed Saturday for construction of a 100,000-gallon storage tank to be erected in the extension to the new customers.

Cabin Rented To Accused, Says Operator

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP)—Charles Clayton of the Woodstock area said Wednesday he rented 2nd Lieut. Peter Balcombe the tourist cabin in which a bundle of woman's clothing was later found hidden.

Clayton testified at the trial of Balcombe on a charge of murdering Marie Anne Carrier, 20-year-old CWAC reserve sergeant from Bienville, near Quebec City, whose knife [illegible] in a ditch 35 miles west of here last October 15.

In reply to a question by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, Clayton said there was no doubt in his mind the man rented the cabin from him October 15 was Balcombe.

In court Clayton picked out Balcombe as the soldier who drove up to the tourist cabin in a car.

Models Built of 'Hull 646'

Nanaimo Ferry Progresses

GLASGOW—Hull 646, the Canadian Pacific Railway's new Vancouver-Nanaimo passenger, car and train ferry, is advancing out of the planning stage at the shipbuilding yard of Alexander Stephen and Sons, at nearby Linthouse.

D. B. Prentice of Victoria, superintendent engineer of the B.C. coast steamships in charge of construction, is here to point out specifications for the new 7,000-ton, twin-screw, diesel-powered vessel, which, it is expected, will go into service about the middle of 1955.

No "make-it-yourself" toy, this is a shell model of hull "646," the Canadian Pacific Railway's new automobile and train ferry which is to go into service between Vancouver and Nanaimo next year. The 7,000-ton, twin-screw, diesel-powered vessel is now under construction at Linthouse, Scotland.

Except for a shell model of the new ship, and a scale wax model of the hull now undergoing tank tests at the National Physical Laboratory at Teddington, the new ship is known only as "No. 646." The keel is being built in sections and will be assembled on a keelway when a berth in the shipyard becomes available.

The new unit will conform to the highest standards of Lloyd's and when completed will have a service speed of 15½ knots. She will be the first all-purpose vessel ever built by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Besides accommodation for 800 passengers, she will be able to carry 28 railway cars or alternatively 110 to 120 automobiles, or a combination of any form of wheeled traffic, including the largest road trucks and buses. The vessel's operating schedule is expected to call for three round trips daily between Vancouver and Nanaimo.

March 5 Target For Budget

British Columbians may know the details of the provincial government's tax plans, the exact amount of pension bonuses and the future of hospital insurance on Friday, March 5.

Premier Bennett said Wednesday he hopes to present his 1954-55 budget to the legislature then.

Unless the current throne speech debate speeds up, however, the budget may have to be postponed a few days.

The premier said he would prefer to bring down the budget on a Friday so that opposition members would have the week end to study the government's financial proposals before CCF leader Arnold Webster opens debate on them.

Legislation will probably begin to trickle into the house this week. No major bills are expected until after the budget has been presented, however.
